Rural Influx Said To Become Wave

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture William Erwin said Thursday night in Lincoln that "rural development is one of the most exciting movements of our time."

Whereas one-third of Americans now live in rural areas, he said "55% say they want to live in rural America," and the federal official predicted that the movement out of the cities is just beginning.

Erwin, addressing participants of a four-state Mid-America Non-Metropolitan Conference, said that in developing rural communities, the greatest single need is local leadership.

4 Key Areas
Rural development at the local level, he said, hinges on four areas that "all have to work together":

- improvement of community facilities
- economic development, including agricultural prosperity, but also including non-agricultural jobs.
- people-building in such areas as education, health and outreach to disadvantaged people, and
- the environment

Regarding the latter, Erwin said planning on farms has far outdistanced that of community development. Aesthetics, such as fresh air, have become an important value to all Americans, he said.

Thieves Steal Italian Art

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Art thieves made off Thursday with valuable paintings by 16th century master Detendente Ferrari from a monastery.

Since Sunday, almost $3 million worth of paintings have been stolen from Italian churches and museums.

The paintings by Ferrari were four wooden panels featuring different saints, part of a polyptych kept in the monastery of St. Anthony of Ranverso near Turin. Their value was estimated at $860,000. The works bore the painter's signature.

The Legislature will be asked to at least delay the confirmation of State Institutions Director Jack Anderson when the issue reaches the floor next week.

A tentative draft of the minority report of the Committee on Committees suggests that "a primary objective of delaying final action is to give legislators the opportunity to meet with (institutions) employees."

The draft was prepared by Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln.

As yet unsigned, it will be presented for approval by three other members of the committee who voted against the recommendation to confirm Anderson.

Voting with Barnett in the 8-4 committee decision to endorse Anderson's appointment were Sens. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, Ernest Chambers of Omaha and E. Thome Johnson of Fremont.

The tentative document was handed by Barnett to Committee Chairman Ramey Whitney of Chappell, who released copies to newsmen.

Whitney will ask the Legislature to confirm the "Society is responsive," Erwin pointed out, and sees "great opportunities" in rural areas.

To cope with the movement of people to rural America, Erwin said "We must build the self-confidence of rural people to where they know they can control the destiny of their rural community."

Erwin told newsmen in a Thursday press conference that the Rural Development Bill, passed by Congress but as yet unfunded, will play an important role in developing local expertise for future planning.

Up To Locals
The presidential philosophy regarding funding of the bill, Erwin said, will leave spending up to the state governors and local planning organizations.

He explained that he was pleased with the "innovative" organizational setup of the bill, which places local people at the top of the list and the federal government at the bottom.

Despite the dollars and what they can accomplish, Erwin predicted that "rural development is going to happen, even if the government decided to try to stop it."

"People are attracted to the rural culture," he said. "Values once laughed at are now coming back in." He emphasized the factor of personal safety of those rural residents contrasted with their urban counterparts.

Can Compete
Rural people are learning they can compete with larger communities and cities, he said, and they have the edge in the area of attitudes, such as caring and help "that we never see in the city."

"Our challenge," Erwin declared, "is to make it go creatively—the way people in their own community want it to go."

Stan Matzke, State Economic Development Department director, and his staff planned the conference after others considering only metropolitan issues were held nation-wide.

Price Of Meat Frozen

Nixon Puts On Clamps

...Time Indefinite

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Thursday night clamped a ceiling on retail and wholesale prices of beef, pork and lamb—in effect freezing them near current levels—in a move to soothe consumer unhappiness over soaring food costs.

He announced the major economic move in a prime-time broadcast address to the nation declaring:

"The ceiling will remain in effect as long as is necessary to do the job. Meat prices must not go higher. With the help of the housewife and farmer, they can and should go down."

Under orders Nixon gave his Cost of Living Council, meat prices, for an indefinite period, cannot exceed an index based on prices for the past 30 days.

This means, economic experts said, that prices in effect are frozen at about their present level.

The President's order does not apply to prices at the farm level—only to meat processors, meat wholesalers and meat retailers. By avoiding controls at the farm level, officials said, they hope to spur increases in production to help bring down prices.

Nixon announced his action in an address which hailed also the end of America's involvement in the long and costly Vietnam war and sounded a call for unity in the search for world peace.

He also sought public support for his budget, contending that spending increases sought by Congress would mean a 15-per-cent tax hike or major price increases.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz also disclosed that Nixon will seek immediate congressional action on legislation giving him authority to suspend import tariffs on products in short supply. Officials said these could include meat as well as lumber and other products undergoing rapid price increases.

Under Nixon's orders, all retailers must, by April 9, post at their meat counters ceiling-price information. The ceiling prices will be enforced by the nationwide network of Internal Revenue Service officers who worked on Nixon's Phase I freeze from August through November 1971.

Nixon told the nation that meat prices are "the major weak spot in our fight against inflation." He said the over-all U.S. inflation rate is the lowest of any major industrial nation, but that these statistics "are no comfort at all to the housewife who sees meat prices soaring every time she goes to the market."

Actions already taken by the administration on imports and production will increase meat supplies and help bring down prices later this year, he said. "But what we need is action that will stop the rise in meat prices now," the chief executive continued. "That is why I have today ordered the Cost of Living Council to impose a ceiling on prices of beef, pork and lamb."

While Nixon did not use the word "freeze" in his 20-minute address, his chief economic spokesman did in a news briefing immediately before the speech.

But Shultz said the preferred word is "ceiling" because the administration expects and hopes that as increased supplies of meat come on the market later this year prices will drop below their ceiling levels.

Shultz spoke of "the housewife rebellion" in listing factors behind the President's move. Only two paragraphs of Nixon's address dealt directly with meat prices. The rest of his comments covered points ranging from the battle of the federal budget to the end of the Vietnam war and to his hopes for world peace.

And his address contained a warning to North Vietnam that he expects compliance with the Indochina cease-fire accord Hanoi officials, he declared, "should have no doubt as to the consequences if they fail to comply with the agreement."

He repeated that he opposes amnesty for "those who deserted America" rather than serve in Vietnam, and expressed thanks to "the great majority of Americans . . . who, despite an unprecedented barrage of criticism from a small but vocal minority, stood firm for peace with honor."

appointment sometime next week.

"I still think he's the best man for the job," Whitney said. "He is a man of superior ability." Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha told newsmen the minority report seeks to turn the Anderson controversy into "a political circus."

The Barnett draft suggests that "it is interesting and hard to believe that employees from the Department of Public Institutions facilities had no opinions to express to the Committee on Committees about Dr. Anderson's confirmation."

If confirmation is not denied, it states, it should at least be delayed in order to seek those opinions.

Furthermore, it suggests, "many of the concerns that were raised during the hearing demand further study."

The report says some senators received "many calls from people working in the Lincoln Regional Center to the effect that his (Anderson's) treatment philosophy is not acceptable to many experts in the field of psychiatry and clinical psychology."

DPI employee morale is "low," the draft states. But the bulk of the report dwells on objections to Anderson's appointment as DPI director when he still holds the title of medical services director for the department.

the two positions cannot, simultaneously, be efficiently held by one individual," the draft states, and "it is almost unbelievable that anyone would feel that the responsibilities . . . could be filled by one person."

The report criticizes Anderson's "inconsistency" in stating his views on alcoholism treatment and his alleged lack of information and "poor administration" of drug use policies at state institutions.

Patients are released from regional centers "without realistic follow-up plans," it was alleged. Anderson's behavior before the committee at its hearings on his appointment indicated he is "unbending, unyielding and unsympathetic to changes advocated by members of the public and the committee," the report states.

"He displays an outward appearance of a tough military official, instead of a sympathizing and understanding psychiatrist who has to take care of the mental health needs of many friends and neighbors in the State of Nebraska."

The report suggests to senators that "when we vote to confirm an individual's appointment, we share responsibility and/or blame for that individual's official conduct."

Cement Blocks Provide Makeshift Bridge

Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond declared a state of emergency in Missouri Thursday because of flooding rivers. Residents of Hannibal were forced to build a makeshift bridge out of cement blocks across South Main Street. The street was inundated by water from the flooding Mississippi River. Commercial traffic on the river was halted Thursday.

Last Combat Troops Pull Out

... Thieu Vows Saigon To Continue Anti-Communist Fight

SAIGON (AP) — The last American combat troops pulled out of Vietnam on Thursday, leaving a still-embattled nation that President Nguyen Van Thieu vowed would continue to "fight under all conditions" to defend itself against communism.

The U.S. troops departed after more than a decade of dogged fighting which cost nearly 46,000 American lives and billions of dollars and which divided the U.S. nation as no other foreign war had done before.

At a 20-minute stand-down ceremony at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base, departing commander Gen. Frederick C. Weyand claimed U.S. forces had accomplished their mission to prevent a Communist takeover by "raw military force."

But as he spoke, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong shells were blasting a beleaguered government ranger camp at Ton Le Chan, 50 miles to the north, and the Saigon command charged 146 violations of the cease-fire in the last 36 hours.

The last GIs filed aboard a C141 transport aircraft at Tan Son Nhut under the watchful eyes of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong officers whose manner suggested they regarded the American departure as little short of a Communist victory.

An irate U.S. colonel hurled a final epithet at his long-time enemies but the startled North Vietnamese went ahead anyway with their presentation of a souvenir gift to one of the last GIs to leave.

As he boarded the drooping C141 bound for Yokota Air Base, Japan, and then Travis Air Force Base, Calif., Sgt. Max Beilke of Alexandria, Minn., got a gaudy straw place mat adorned with a pagoda, and made in North Vietnam, from Hanoi's official spokesman in Saigon, Lt. Col. Bui Tin.

Some 2,500 American troops were flown out of Saigon and the northern base of Da Nang during the day to complete the withdrawal provided for in the Paris peace agreement signed Jan. 27. Since the signing, 23,500 U.S. troops have left Vietnam.

As the last combat troops flew home, U.S. officials made clear that the United States was not washing its hands of Vietnam.

They noted that about 48,000 American troops remain in near-by Thailand, 30,000 aboard 7th Fleet ships in Southeast Asian waters, and 20,000 on the Pacific island of Guam.

The 7th Fleet was reported to have about 50 ships, including four carriers with a total of 200 strike planes within range of Vietnam. The Pentagon said there were 152 B52 bombers on Guam and more than 450 Air Force and Marine warplanes, including 50 B52s, at bases in Thailand.

The United States remains heavily involved in Cambodia, adjacent to Vietnam. The Department of Defense accuses the Communist side of falling down on provisions of the Paris agreement that called for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cambodia. Secretary Elliot L. Richardson says he can't say when U.S. bombing there will end.

As the Saigon command closed up shop, a new U.S. command was being set up in Thailand. It will be known as USSAG — U.S.

Support Activities Group — with headquarters at Nakorn Phanom, 550 miles northeast of Bangkok, on the Mekong River and within artillery range of North Vietnamese forces in Laos.

USSAG will be the operational headquarters for U.S. forces in Indochina. Its commander is Gen. John Vogt, previously deputy commander in Vietnam and commander of the U.S. 7th Air Force.

More than 1,000 U.S. servicemen remain in Vietnam — 825 members of the four-party Joint Military Commission, 50 military attaches, and 159 U.S. Embassy Marine guards. The JMC contingent will leave Friday and Saturday. The others will stay.

$600,000 YMCA Fund Drive Approved By Directors Of LCS

The Lincoln Community Services (LCS) Board of Directors Thursday approved YMCA plans to conduct a private $600,000 capital fund drive to be completed no later than May 31.

The LCS board was told that the drive, plus internal administrative reorganization at the Y, will put the organization on sound financial basis.

YMCA officials said the drive for funds should be completed before the deadline, which was imposed as a condition for LCS approval.

Due to a variety of circumstances, the YMCA has been suffering from a debt considerably larger than it had anticipated when it renovated a downtown and built a new facility in northeast Lincoln.

As of Jan. 31, the organization had a debt of more than $1 million and was paying some $98,000 a year on capital debts alone.

The $600,000, to be raised without a full-fledged public campaign, is to be collected over a three-year period.

It will be used to meet about $100,000 in payables due now or within a few months and to reduce mortgage debt by $350,000.

The result will leave a mortgage debt of $502,000 over 20 years on the Central YMCA and 25 years at the Northeast Y, and reduce the annual debt payment to $49,700, or about half the current rate.

The recommendation to go ahead with a campaign at that level came from a special citizens committee which studied the financial shape of the Y.

That committee also recommended an evaluation of all Y staff positions, said a financial administrator should be added to the staff and called for establishment of a balancing operational budget.

It also said the YMCA should establish a monthly financial review, appoint a finance committee and submit monthly financial reports to Lincoln Community Services.

Finally, the committee said the former owner of the downtown hotel which houses the Central Y had agreed to relinquish an annual annuity built into the original contract. Bennett S. Martin donated the building to the Y.

And the committee also asked for reinstatement of a $74,000 personal pledge once canceled. That pledge was reinstated.

The LCS board was told the YMCA had adopted all the recommendations of the citizens committee and was at work implementing them.

Sen. Church Says
'Somebody Is Lying'

WASHINGTON AP — Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, Thursday charged "somebody is lying" to his Senate subcommittee in its investigation into ITT operations in Chile.

Church made the accusation—without naming anyone directly as a liar—following testimony by Charles Meyer, former assistant secretary of state for interamerican affairs.

Meyer told the special foreign relations panel he had "no recollection" of a $1-million offer from an official of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. to construct low-cost housing in Chile in 1970.

Three ITT officials last week gave the subcommittee varying versions of an offer by the firm.

Jack D. Neal, the international relations director, swore he told Meyer that ITT was prepared to make a "seven-figure" contribution toward "any program the United States might formulate" for Chile.

Edward Gerrity, ITT's senior vice president for corporate relations, testified that the corporation was prepared to provide $1-million for a housing program for the Chilean poor.

And John J. McCone, an ITT director and former head of the Central Intelligence Agency, said he relayed to Richard Helms, and to Henry A. Kissinger that

World News

Harold Geneen, ITT's board chairman, was "prepared to put up as much as $1 million in support of any government plan for the purpose of bringing about a coalition against Allende."

Salvador Allende, a Marxist, had finished first in Chile's popular election for president in September 1970, but without a majority. Under Chilean law this left it to the Congress to choose between him and other contenders.

The Congress certified Allende. A year later he expropriated ITT's 70 per cent interest in the Chile Telephone Co., which the firm contends is worth about $153 million.

At the time, Helms was director of the CIA. Kissinger was President Nixon's national security adviser, a post he still holds.

In the face of the apparent discrepancy between Meyer's testimony and that of ITT officials, Church declared "It is obvious from what we have heard today that somebody is lying."

The senator said there would be a "thorough review of the record" and that if it appears perjury was committed he will turn the testimony over to the Justice Department for possible criminal action.

Church began the statement by telling Meyer there was "nothing personal" involved. He commended the witness for "truthfulness" and "honesty."

This clearly indicated the chairman's targets are ITT officials, but he sidestepped a direct reply when asked about that by a newsmen.

Kissinger Cites Vietnam Peace Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger reportedly cited the Jan. 27 Vietnam peace agreement to congressmen Thursday as President Nixon's authority for the intensive U.S. bombing in Cambodia—but said the Cambodia fighting could be resolved within a month.

Several members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said after the private briefing that Kissinger cited Article 20 of the Vietnam agreement as the bombing authority.

This is the article that says all outside forces shall withdraw from Cambodia and Laos and let those two countries negotiate their own political settlements.

The congressmen quoted Kissinger as interpreting Article 20 to authorize the United States to support Cambodian Premier Lon Nol so long as the North Vietnamese continue to support the Cambodian insurgents.

But they said Kissinger stressed the U.S. bombing is only what one said he called the last "winding down" U.S. involvement in the Indochina war—not a new U.S. war operation for which the President would feel compelled to ask Congress' authority.

The congressmen said Kissinger's citation did not appear to be the formal U.S.

bombing authority position on which State Department officials have said their lawyers are working, but rather his own view of the authority.

Kissinger was quoted as saying the Cambodia fighting could be resolved within a month with the help of the upcoming monsoon season.

Last Grunts Leave Vietnam,
Civilians Pick Camp Clean

SAIGON (AP)—The grunts are gone.

A North Vietnamese officer presented a little gift Thursday to the last of the American GIs to leave — and a horde of South Vietnamese looted their kitchen and mess hall.

The servicemen boarded an Air Force jet at Tan Son Nhut air base shortly before 6 p.m. — 5 a.m. EST — after a day of speeches about having "done our job" and "peace with honor."

There remained 825 U.S. members of the Joint Military Commission, who are to be gone by Sunday. But 50 military attaches and 159 Marine guards at the U.S. Embassy remain.

Nobody wanted to be the last American to die in Vietnam, but seemingly there were some who wanted to be the last American out. But on the official manifest he was M. Sgt. Max Belke of Alexandria, Minn., who had stamped the orders of departing soldiers, stamped his own, left the stamp on a table and walked out.

Belke told newsmen he was "real proud to have that distinction" of being the last, but he was bumped a few minutes after boarding when three Air Force people showed up.

After a short game of after-you, Col. David Odell of Crystal Lake, Minn., boarded the plane and he was last.

One American's wry summation of the withdrawal, "A computerized Dunkerque."

Scarcely had Camp Alpha's last dozen U.S. military policemen boarded their planes when 100 to 200 Vietnamese men, women and children stormed through, under and over the compound's chain link fence and invaded the mess hall.

Vietnamese mess hall employees helped the looters remove dozens of chairs and tables, pull fans from the ceiling and carry food from the store room.

One South Vietnamese military policeman helped lift heavy chairs and tables over the fence. Vietnamese guards, hired by Pacific Architects and Engineers, an American firm with a contract to guard Camp Alpha while the U.S. Embassy decides what to do with it, looked on passively.

"I ran around to the guards saying, 'Stop them! Stop them!'" said Camp Alpha's first sergeant, James Owenby of Cleveland, Tenn. "They just leaned back against the fence and watched."

The dining hall, which once seated 1,000 men, was a shambles, with most of its equipment carried off in jeeps and trucks that waited outside.

Air Force Sgt. Joe Allison of Imperial, Mo., who had spent the last three nights without sleep—shepherding other people's baggage at the last moment—couldn't find his own.

"I knew it! I just knew it!" he cried as he rushed around the nearly empty departure hall where South Vietnamese air force troops were already removing desks and typewriters.

Finally Allison found his suitcase in custody of a friend and retrieved his toilet kit and orders before they were driven off in a South Vietnamese air force truck.

Puppy Waits At Door;
Denise Won't Be Back

(c) Chicago Daily News
Chicago — The dog was found starving and half-frozen in an alley last winter, but Denise Ann Moore mothered it and brought it back to life.

Denise, 10, named the pup "Snooper." Later she insisted on being told what breed Snooper is. Denise's mother invented a breed and called Snooper a short-haired collie.

For three weeks, Snooper has waited at the front door of the Moore home. He doesn't know Denise will never return. Denise was killed March 8 when she was run over by a large red truck that didn't even slow down.

She had been out to buy Snooper a present.

Police have not been able to find the hit-and-run driver. Denise's parents, Freeman and Ann Moore, have offered a $500 reward for information leading to the driver's arrest.

When police reached Denise's body she was still grasping the string from a blue balloon that she had bought for herself at the dime store, along with the new leather leash for Snooper.

'We're Mighty Happy,' Says 587th Prisoner

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — The 587th prisoner of war walked off the plane that carried the final group out of Hanoi on Thursday and exclaimed: "We're mighty happy to be home!"

Then he, and those who arrived here with him, sat down to a steak dinner.

The last man was Lt. Cmdr. Alfred H. Agnew, 32, of Albany, Ga., whose jet fighter-bomber was shot down Dec. 28 in the bombing of North Vietnam that preceded the signing of a cease-fire two months ago.

The slight, sandy-haired Navy officer and 66 other fliers, some of them B52 crewmen also shot down in December, "are just as happy, just as grateful, as the men who were released after eight years" in captivity, said a hospital spokesman here.

The men checked into the base hospital shortly after arrival, changed into clean pajamas and robes and filed into the cafeteria in the basement for dinner.

The release of 587 U.S. POWs was begun by the North Vietnamese on Feb. 12 and the first man to step to freedom was Capt. Jeremiah Denton Jr., 48, a Navy pilot from Virginia Beach, Va., who was shot down July 18, 1965.

All of the latest group of POWs are expected to have left here for home by Sunday.

Most of the 67 men in the final batch bounded down the ramps of the two planes with big grins and smart salutes. But several were injured and saluted the colors and welcoming officials with their left hands. Air Force Capt. Keith H. Lewis, 33, of

World News

Goldsboro, N.C., used crutches. Agnew was described as "disturbed" as the North Vietnamese practiced what was called by Clark officials as "a little show business."

After his buddies were safe with the U.S. team in Hanoi the North Vietnamese waited several minutes and began talking about something. They finally called his name and he paced nervously past his captors.

"I sure as hell am happy to be going home," he said on reaching the Americans. U.S. newsmen flown into Hanoi to cover the turnover gathered around him and he was taken aboard the C141. Agnew is not related to the vice president.

Many of the new POWs were carrier pilots and B52 crewmen whose planes were downed in the saturation bombing ordered by President Nixon to pressure the Communists to a peace settlement.

They joined 10 POWs released by the Pathet Lao, 40 freed by the North Vietnamese and 32 freed by the Viet Cong earlier this week. All are going through the now-familiar routine of medical checks, telephone calls to their families and shopping at the base exchange.

Brig. Gen. Russell Ogan of the Air Force says an intensive search will be launched soon for the 1,328 servicemen listed by the United States as missing in action in Indochina. The United States also wants a North Vietnamese list of those Americans killed in action.

Negotiations will begin shortly by the four-power peace commission in Vietnam to allow Americans access to search North Vietnam and areas controlled by the Viet Cong, said Ogan, director of prisoner of war and missing in action affairs for the secretary of defense.

The talks will also cover procedures for the return of the remains of 55 Americans who died in captivity and those of any of the 1,100 fliers listed as killed in action but whose bodies were never recovered.

Ogan expressed belief there also may be returned some bodies of the men now listed as missing. This is why the Americans would like a list of those killed.

"The Vietnamese kept very good records; we expect to find something," he said.

He added that U.S. officials had no hope there were any military POWs in Cambodia or North Vietnam. Laos is a "gray area" and South Vietnam "may still hold some men," he said.

The search for the unaccounted servicemen is expected to take three to five years. The Defense Department plans to set up a headquarters in Thailand to search for the missing.

H. Rap Brown Convicted In Manhattan Bar Holdup

NEW YORK (AP) — Former black militant leader H. Rap Brown and three codefendants were convicted Thursday of the holdup of a West Side Manhattan bar, but the jury was unable to agree on charges that they tried to murder police in a subsequent gun battle.

State Supreme Court Justice Arnold Frauman then dismissed the jury, which had gotten the case in muddle Tuesday after a 2½-month trial.

The four also were found guilty of assault against Patrolman Gary Hunt — a lesser charge than attempted murder. He was seriously wounded in an exchange of gunfire outside the Red Carpet Lounge on Oct. 16, 1971.

The bandit quartet forced 30 patrons of the lounge to lie on the floor, robbed them of their valuables, and emptied the cash register. But as the gunmen fled into the street they were met by arriving police cars.

U.S. POWs Tell Of Starvation, Beatings, Pain In Red Prisons

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Former U.S. prisoners of war told on Thursday of torture, beatings and starvation at the hands of North Vietnamese guards trying to force antiwar statements from the servicemen.

Giving the first detailed account of life in Communist prisons, the men said some of the prisoners were tortured to death, blinded and maimed. Others spent months and even years in solitary confinement. Several former POWs said they broke under the pain.

They spoke of being treated like animals, of screaming for hours, of humiliation and isolation, of constant beatings and lack of medical attention, of being denied food to the point where a grain of rice was treasured.

The men said the North Vietnamese paid no attention to the Geneva Convention provisions on the treatment of prisoners.

Navy Cmdr. Richard A. Stratton, captured in January 1967 and displayed at a North Vietnamese news conference where the Communists claimed he confessed to war crimes, demanded that his captors be brought to trial.

The picture of life in prison emerged at news conferences held by the former prisoners after the release of the last known POWs. The men previously refused to discuss their captivity, fearing for the lives of those still held prisoner.

One man said 95 per cent of the American prisoners were tortured and 80 per cent finally agreed to make some sort of antiwar statement; another said a prisoner who escaped and was recaptured was tortured to death; a third recalled times when he screamed all night with pain.

Air Force Col. Robinson Risner of Oklahoma City, Okla., told a news conference at Andrews Air Force Base: "I think some prisoners died at the hands of the North Vietnamese."

Risner, captured on Sept. 16, 1965 and one of the senior officers in the POW camps, said the men died from neglect and outright brutality.

Navy Capt. James A. Mulligan Jr., captured on March 20, 1966, told a news conference at the Portsmouth (Va.) Naval Hospital that almost all the prisoners were tortured and most eventually broke down.

He admitted making propaganda statements for the North Vietnamese after undergoing lengthy torture sessions. "I made more than one tape," Risner said. "I wrote what they told me to write after a torture session. If I was told to say the war was wrong, I said the war was wrong."

Mulligan said he spent 42 months in isolation. Navy Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr. told a college audience earlier in the day that he spent more than four years in solitary "with extreme pain an all-too frequent companion."

Mulligan said the North Vietnamese withheld food, water and medical attention as well as beating the prisoners, making them spend long periods in stocks, shackles and leg irons and tying them up with ropes.

Lt. Col. Leo Thorsness of Sioux Falls, S.D., said conditions improved somewhat in the winter of 1969. Similar comments were made by other prisoners at other news conferences.

Thorsness said that until that winter the routine of life was "isolation, intimidation and humiliation."

During the winter of 1969 he said, the men were put in larger cells, sometimes as many as 40 in one room. "We had periods where it was not at all unhappy," he said.

IN PERSPECTIVE

(Mr. Dobler is out of the city on business. His column will be resumed Tuesday, April 3).

By TOM WICKER

NEW YORK -- "Take your choice," declares the United States Chamber of Commerce in full-page newspaper ads. "Control spending or raise taxes." That, the ads continue, is how "President Nixon laid it on the line to Congress and the American People."

This is rather like saying "control your automobile or have a wreck." The question is not whether federal spending ought to be controlled; it is by what means and to what end spending ought to be controlled.

Nevertheless, the Chamber of Commerce formulation, echoing the Nixon administration's expert sloganeering — the President even specified a 15 per cent tax increase, in his most recent veto — is one of those effective oversimplifications with which American politics abounds. There was, for instance, the legendary and perhaps apocryphal member of Congress who is said to have cried out to his colleagues during a debate on the tariff:

"Are you for Japan or for America?"

The political appeal of these dubious simplicities should never be underestimated. The difficulties of combating them can hardly be overestimated, as was well-illustrated this week by the Joint Economic Committee of the two houses of Congress. In their annual report, both the majority Democrats and the Republican minority agreed with Nixon's announced intention to "control" federal spending at a total of $268 billion in fiscal 1974, in order to avoid inflation or higher taxes or both.

But the Democrats went on lamely to say that "Congress should make major reallocations within the administration's proposed expenditure total." And there's the rub.

It is easy enough to pose a spending ceiling — particularly one that will seem astronomical to most voters — as the only alternative to higher taxes which no one wants. It is not so easy to answer, as the Democrats do, "yes, but even if we hold it to $268 billion, we can still reduce defense a little and increase health services, or we can cut foreign aid and put more into mass transit." And it is even harder to explain that, even if the $268 billion were to be exceeded, certain kinds of tax reform — not increases — might hold the deficit of expenditures over revenue to about the same level.

These complexities begin to be insurmountable if the further argument is attempted that, even though spending ought to be held to $268 billion, there may be dangers and consequences that outweigh those of a tax increase in the means by which the ceiling is enforced — in this instance, Nixon's iron-handed impoundment of appropriated funds he has single-handedly decided should not be spent.

Some of these are clearly boondoggles and overdue for termination. The questions remain whether it is good practice, and what the ultimate consequences will be, when presidential fiat nullifies legislative enactment — even, in one case, when a presidential veto already had been overridden.

These are the complexities that are not allowed to surface in the Chamber of Commerce ads, or in most administration rhetoric. And Caspar Weinberger, the President's former budget director and now Secretary of H.E.W., made the administration's most convincing argument when he said of Congress's "antiquated and illogical" budgetary procedures:

"Nowhere among its 300-odd committees and subcommittees, each responsible for a small portion of the budget, is there one focal point where a goal or spending ceiling can be set and monitored to assure spending sanity."

Nixon has rushed to fill that congressional vacuum. And while it is specious to argue that a tax increase is the only alternative, that same vacuum does give Nixon's impoundment policy a certain practical validity.

The Watergate Mob: Corrupt And Dumb

Washington — One of the most bizarre aspects of the Watergate bugging is that it was so unnecessary.

What on earth could officials of President Nixon's re-election committee have expected to find out from the Democratic National Committee that made it worth committing a Federal crime?

The Nixon Administration fashions itself as a law-and-order crowd. Yet men on the Nixon campaign payroll committed a sinister act of desperation, when they had no reason to be desperate. Their candidate was never in serious danger of losing the 1972 Presidential election to Democratic nominee George McGovern.

In fact, McGovern did so many things in public to embarrass himself that looking for private embarrassments was political glutony.

This columnist has been around national politics long enough not to be shocked at venality in any form at any level. Bad apples turn up in the government's barrel just as they do in business or in any other area of life. And lying is the standard technique in any administration (not just this one) for blocking or at least deflecting the publication of politically damaging information.

But what has been novel about the rapidly unraveling Watergate scandal is the stupidity of it all. A number of supposedly sophisticated people trusted by President Nixon's campaign manager, former Attorney General John Mitchell, took a wild risk for what at the most could only be a small return

And so many individuals were apparently involved that it is no wonder the beans are finally spilling. Every politician worth his salt knows that committees can't keep secrets.

It is difficult to imagine what details of McGovern's campaign strategy or contribution lists the Republicans were curious about.

The White House insists that its fabled efficiency broke down in this one instance and the episode was entirely the fault of overzealous and unauthorized flunkies. That does not exactly jibe with the way one of those flunkies is telling it.

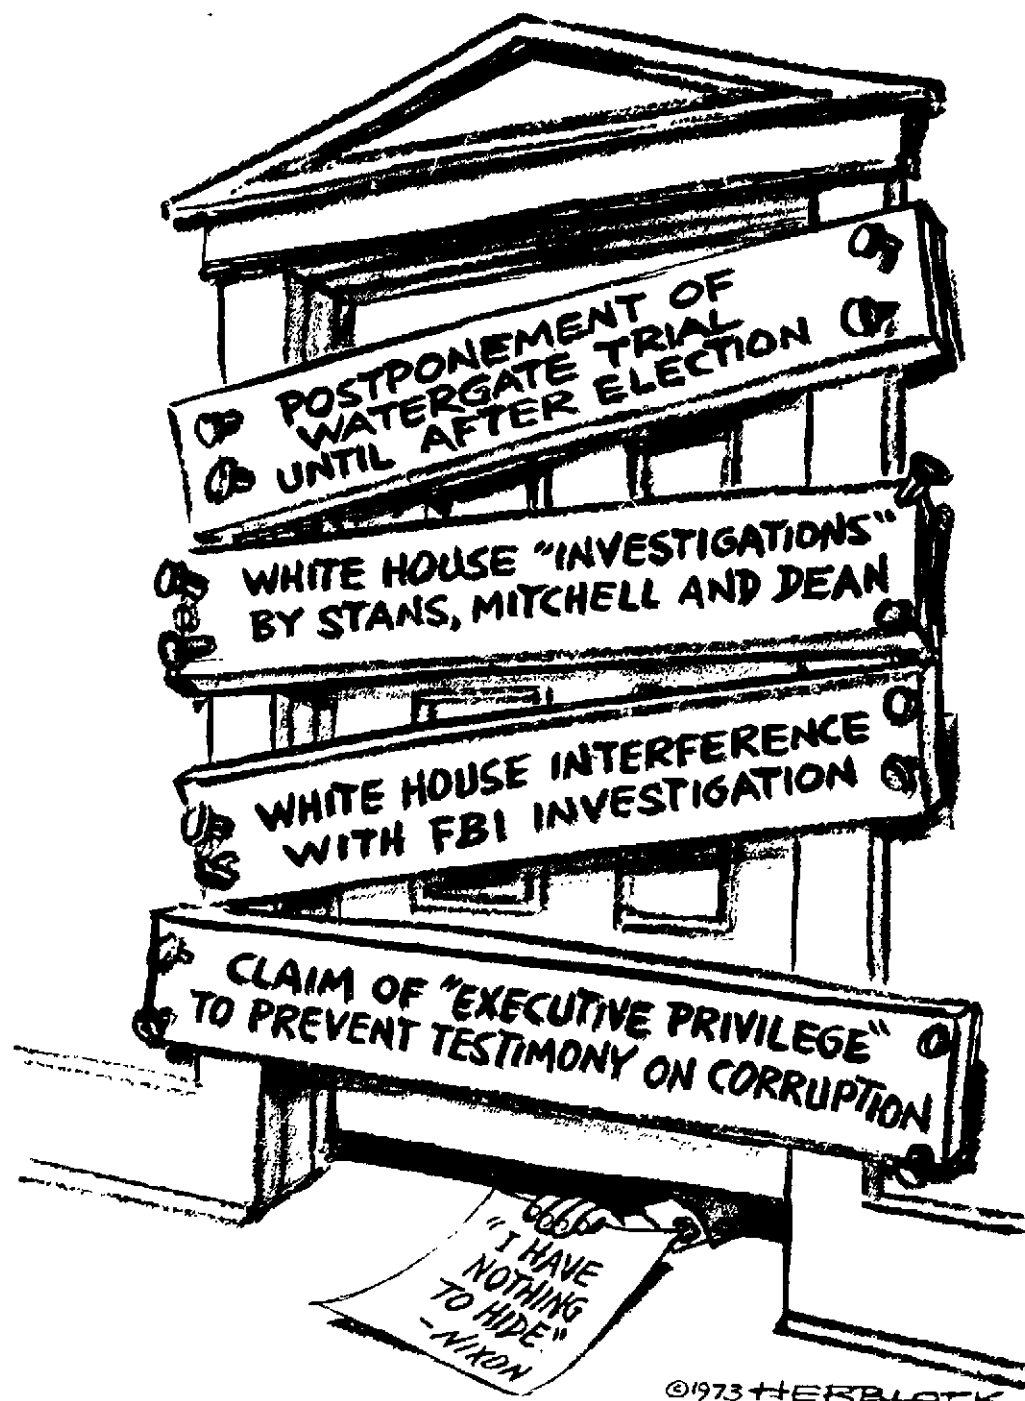

The President put out the word he had nothing to hide, but he is behaving as though he were hiding something. And Mitchell has had a loss of memory as to whether he discussed with Finance Chairman Maurice Stans the way in which the approximately $200,000, which went to so-called security surveillance, would be spent.

One theory as to how it all happened goes to the core of the argument for campaign financing reform. It suggests that Mitchell had so much money to spend he was careless about how it was used.

That theory absolves Mitchell of criminal knowledge, but it will hardly add to his reputation for brilliant campaign management.

The bugging scandal is a sordid affair, and the truth is not yet out. But what is already clear is that some well-placed Republicans were not only corrupt but dumb.

Going To The DOGS?

Unhappily, the debate over a legislative bill to reshuffle state government's Department of Administrative Services has turned into more of a personal squabble than a philosophical deliberation.

Governor Exon is correct in sharply opposing the effort to take DAS functions away from his control and substitute a new Department of Governmental Services under the management of five constitutional officers. In effect, that proposal would strip the governor's office of executive control over the administrative operation of state government. Now, if that isn't unconstitutional, it certainly ought to be.

Although Exon's objections to the bill are valid, it is regrettable that he has based his opposition more in the form of a personal attack on Sen. Richard Marvel than on the effect of the bill itself. There is not much to be gained from that kind of assault.

Criticism of the bill itself is more warranted. It would, as the governor said, "dismantle" DAS. It appears that it would, as the governor said, "erode the constitutional powers of the office of the governor."

And it would undo much that has been accomplished in the last several years to consolidate administrative functions of state government under executive direction.

The bill, LB452, which is nearing final reading in the Legislature, would cripple the office of governor. It would almost guarantee a weak chief executive, even when the state is fortunate enough to have a strong man as governor. And it is hard to imagine how the proposed new DGS (some Capitol wags suggest DOGS would be more apropos) could function effectively as a daily administrator under the management of five bosses — the governor, the attorney general, the secretary of state, the auditor and the treasurer.

Under the state constitution, the governor is solely (and quite correctly) responsible for seeing to it that "the affairs of the state (are) efficiently and economically administered." He is "the supreme executive power." That is as it should be. Senators would be wise to read the constitution and consider the consequences of a weak governorship before they cast a final vote on LB452.

Home Sales Bill Advanced

The tactics are familiar enough. The door-to-door salesman has to sell only one more of his product to win a Grand Prize trip to the Caribbean or three more magazine subscriptions to win a college scholarship. Or perhaps he will demonstrate one single appliance that performs a hundred household chores from grinding meat to drying the housewife's hair. And if the salesman is good enough, he might even persuade his prospect that it will walk the dog and babysit as well.

It's all part of the American way of doing business and we doubt if very many consumers are totally immune to such salesmanship. If need be, the credit is there and the payments are easy, so why not?

But all too often, the product is something the householder doesn't need and can ill afford.

To protect the consumer from what was described at the hearing as "pressure cooker sales techniques," a legislative interim study committee on truth-in-advertising has sponsored LB212.

RUSSELL BAKER

Fumes In Baker Street

Holmes and I were seated in our Baker Street rooms in a blue funk, he swabbing his dottle with cocaine whilst I watched Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce playing Holmes and myself on the telly.

Imagine my annoyance when, out of the fog at the top of the stairs, there came a sharp, impatient, but wellbred, rap at our door and Holmes said, "that will be a slightly desperate business executive from Detroit with a wallet containing six different European currencies. Let the gentleman in, Watson. I think he needs our help."

"Holmes, you are wrong this time," I said, more out of pique than good judgment, for though I knew too well that he was always right, watching Rathbone-Holmes constantly making a fool out of Bruce-me on the telly had left me embittered over the years, and I longed to see Holmes humbled.

It was intentionally irritating, therefore, to open the door and find an expensively dressed man who said, "I am a slightly desperate business executive from Detroit."

"Go away," I said.

"Come, Watson, let the poor fellow in, and don't be such a churl. It is amazing, if I must say so myself, that I was able to deduce the nature of the party knocking at our door, and it's rather mean-spirited of you not to ask me how I did it."

"You have the author on your side, Holmes," I said. "It's not fair."

"You see," said Holmes, "a few moments before his knock I had smelled an intensification of the automobile exhaust pollutants beneath my window. That meant a big car made in Detroit where they are unable, as you know, Watson, to meet government limits on pollution emissions. Who could bear the expense of driving one of these cars, with its monstrous gasoline consumption, in London where the price of gasoline gives pause even to millionaires? Only a man, who did not have to pay for the gasoline himself, Watson. Someone who, by driving his own company's car on a business trip, could charge the entire cost off to the American taxpayer as a business expense. All this could only add up to a Detroit business executive."

"But why 'slightly desperate,' Holmes?"

"All Americans in Europe nowadays are slightly desperate, old man," said Holmes.

"Why?" I asked.

"Because they never know when the dollar will fall again, leaving them unable to buy dinner. That's why they carry six different European currencies."

"Rot, Holmes," I snorted. "Absolute childish rot! Even Rathbone would never try to pass off a deduction as unperceptive as that."

"I must have your help, Mr. Holmes," said the American, staggering into our rooms and collapsing into a study in scarlet.

"I know," said Holmes. "I have been expecting you."

"Nonsense, Holmes," I protested. "You're faking it."

"Not at all, Watson. Our friend here has a dreadful problem. The auto companies he represents in Detroit are unable to solve the problem of reducing pollutant emissions to their government's satisfaction. It has all been in the papers. Something vital is missing in Detroit."

"Exactly, Mr. Holmes!" cried the American.

"Yes," said Holmes. "You no longer have the good old American know-how."

"Mr. Holmes," the American sobbed, "that good old American know-how was what got Lindy across the Atlantic first. It beat Hitler and the Axis.

MILAN WALL

All That Glitters . . .

When Marlon Brando's protest broke into the world of fantasy the other evening it proved too much for an audience that came to participate in one of the last carryovers of movie gold and glitter.

Oscar night is perhaps the one time of the year that the glamour once associated with all of moviedom is put on display, not only for the movie folks themselves, but also for millions of viewers who consistently choose the tube over movie houses as a means of entertainment while maintaining an interest in film stars.

It's a night when the rest of us can live for a while in that world, watching to see who wears what, who shows up with whom, how winners and losers react in close-up shots as the envelopes are opened.

The Hollywood watchers had been saying Brando would refuse the award if he won it, so his absence was no surprise.

But the viewers inside the hall and out weren't quite prepared when he sent a stand-in an Indian woman, who with a good deal of courage told Brando's reasons for not coming.

Amid some jeers, she explained that he was protesting portrayal of Indians in films, especially those movies which keep showing up on television late at night when re-runs reign supreme.

And she tossed in his concern over what has been happening at Wounded Knee.

Her appearance, though applauded, was apparently anything but welcome, as was indicated by the tasteless remarks made after she left by Raquel Welch and Clint Eastwood.

The next morning, on NBC's "Today," host Frank McGee wondered when people were going to stop bringing up things in settings that are "unconnected."

But the point Brando was trying to make, and one which we ought not ignore, is that the two worlds that met on the stage when Sacheen Littlefeather stood there are not unconnected at all.

In few American films has the Indian been portrayed as more than a savage whose lifework represented an effort to wipe white men from the face of the earth.

In fact, of course, the opposite was more nearly the truth, and the reality of that tragedy is something we're paying for now in Wounded Knee and other places.

Unfortunately, to assume that the world of movie fantasy and the world of Indian reality are "unconnected" is to make a mistake too often made in this modern world.

And it's made in many another sphere. The world is much too complicated, and the impact of what we do too far-reaching, to draw neat and simple lines between one world and the next.

Although all of us must, for the sake of sanity, be able to slip on occasion into some world of fantasy to escape the stresses of the real world, we simply can't block off our lives as if they are made of tidy categories easily defined.

We're beginning to realize now, for example, that we can't simply continue to use up the world's energy resources without paying the price in diminishing supplies.

Yet, it's at the same time fairly easy for us to ignore the relationship between our continual short automobile trips here and there for every possible purpose and shortages of fuel oil to heat homes in another part of the Midwest.

If we keep on our blinders, we can assume that those are two unconnected worlds. But they aren't, and neither are the two worlds of filmmaking and attitudes toward Indians.

The people who've made it exploiting the Indian as a savage creature must bear their share of the uncomfortable realities of the Wounded Knees.

It was somewhat ironic that the Oscar audience appeared so put off by Brando's response, especially since two of the films being honored were hailed as sympathetic looks at reality in the lives of blacks.

The fact that two black actresses were awaiting word on the best actress award made Raquel Welch's remark about causes all the more tasteless.

It was similarly ironic that Rosalind Russell had been singled out for a special Oscar earlier in the evening, not for the many films she had done, but for devoting much of her life to causes.

Perhaps her causes have been more popular, but still the academy was recognizing a colleague's devotion to her fellow humans.

Brando's cause, however, struck closer to home, and perhaps it hurt more than the immediate reaction indicated.

Some of the reaction, on the other hand, may have been a response to what was considered bad manners.

But we have to be rocked into the world of reality on occasion to wake us up, and sometimes that takes what some might call bringing up uncomfortable realities in inappropriate places.

We just can't ignore the fact that some of that Hollywood gold is built on films that exploited American Indians.

Brando's protest may have rubbed off a bit of the glitter of the Oscar ceremony, but the reality that showed through is not something that may be jeered and booed away.

Not Indifferent

Lincoln, Neb.

In your March 24, 1973 editorial it was said that "It is the men who suffer nothing one way or another in the question of abortion, although they have certainly been an equal part in things up to the point of abortion." We will all agree that in any pregnancy only the women suffer physical pain. As a director of Birthright since its inception October 11, 1971, I must challenge your statement. "But the man in the case of an unwanted child faces nothing of the anguish and uncertainty that a woman can face." Not all men are that indifferent. Over one-third of our calls come from young men.

A young man will call because he is worried that his girl friend is pregnant. He is deeply concerned about her and the third life involved — the life of his child.

Marriage is not always the answer. Many of these young people realize that they are not ready for marriage, but are seeking a Christian answer to the dilemma in which they find themselves. Birthright prefers to work with both the mother and the father so a decision can be made for the good of all three lives. If relinquishment of the child for adoption is their decision, there are many fine adoptive parents who would welcome a baby into their homes.

It has been most gratifying to find, in this world where young people are often pictured as irresponsible and callous, so many young men who are willing to assume responsibility for their actions.

MARY ALICE PRATT

Hruska Questioned

Lincoln, Neb.

If ever there was a test between the role of the FBI as a fact-finding investigatory agency and as a politicized national police force, it is embodied in the nomination of L. Patrick Gray. The proper place of the FBI in a democracy — and who is to head the bureau — is clearly a national issue which should transcend party loyalty.

So many legitimate questions have been raised and remain unanswered during the hearings before the Judiciary Committee that a reasonable person would have cause to pause on the merits of the issue. Yet, Senator Roman Hruska is solidly (automatically?) supporting the Administration for no apparent reason. Perhaps the Senator will inform the readers of The Star of his rationale for backing Mr. Gray, a man of dubious, objective qualifications and questionable partisan activities.

Rights Denied

Lincoln, Neb.

Thirty-one senators voted against ERA and the same day 15 of those same senators voted against a bill strengthening the Equal Opportunity Commission. One week later, many of those same senators voted against adequate support for welfare mothers and their children.

These men have tried to deny Nebraska women their legal rights and responsibilities, and the opportunity to redress grievances, and at the same time wish to force welfare mothers out of the home and into an inequitable labor market.

What is their logic? If middle class mothers belong at home then so do welfare mothers. If welfare mothers must work to support their families, give the Equal Opportunity Commission the tools to protect these women.

Vote Bailey

Lincoln, Neb.

When Sue Bailey filed for City Council, I was pleased that this bright, dedicated, efficient woman was willing to give her time and energy and thought to city government. Sue Bailey has served her city already for 16 years as an enlightened, hard-working volunteer.

In various official capacities, Sue Bailey has participated in the meaningful work of the League of Women Voters, which was her training ground and her proving ground for community service.

On both primary and general election days I urge the citizens of Lincoln to cast a vote for Sue Bailey for City Council.

MRS. NAN GRAF

Knows Lincoln

Lincoln, Neb.

Those of us who have known Sue Bailey during her twenty years in Lincoln, are delighted that such a well-qualified individual has decided to run for City Council. I know of no other candidate who has devoted more time over such a long period to an expensive and voluntary study of city and county government. She is one of the most well-informed people I know!

Sue Bailey combines experience with her knowledge of government. She has been an active member and sometime officer of the League of Women Voters, has participated in voter-information programs, has been a valuable member of government-oriented committees at the local, state, and national levels, and is a dedicated worker for her church.

Most important of all is Mrs. Bailey's knowledge of the people of Lincoln. She shares their concerns, and is ready to serve them and her city as Council member.

I would very much like to see Jim Plant elected to the Lincoln City Council. His persistence and determination got him on the ballot over the objection of the Election Commissioner and it will be his persistence and determination to represent all the people which will get him elected to the Lincoln City Council.

I cast my vote for Jim Plant on election day.

San Francisco — Up in the cool morning. Snap on the radio. Remember folks," says the announcer, "with each fill of pop gasoline, you get one of these beautiful stainless steel knives. Free!"

The Pop Gasoline people sent me a pair of credit cards recently. I cut them up. Didn't do the scissors any good either.

The youngest girl said to me. "It says in the paper that all gasoline works the same no matter what they add to it."

A government agency said it: Gas is gas. "Additives have little to do with the performance" Fill 'er up

We are a suburban two-car family. One car has so much mileage on it we expect it to blow any day. However, the other car isn't paid for yet so—

How do we select our gasoline?

We see the TV cars set off two by two. The announcer says tensely: "Now watch the car with added Zing!"

"Well, it's pitiful. While Car One without Zing sits empty, Car Two with Zing comes crashing through the paper screen. Goes on for a mile or so more.

Do we go out and buy gasoline with Zing? No, we go right back to the station where we know the man. He always checks our tires.

The gasoline companies are wild for your business. "The Sign of the Happy Face." Employees are ordered to "Smile, Blast You, Smile!"

American gas stations are a wonder to foreigners driving here

English friend of mine drove across country. On his first stop for gas, four attendants leaped on his car

He said: "One washed the windshield. Another looked at the oil gauge. I could hear hissing in back. Bless me, if one chap wasn't putting air in the tires. All I wanted was a few gallons of petrol, you know."

European stations don't do all that for you. If you ask, they will. They expect a tip.

Hardly a day but what I get a pair of plastic credit cards in the mail. One for Him, One for Her.

The president writes me a cheery message: "Please accept my compliments." He says: "As an introductory offer, we want you to accept this magnificent radio at the special price of

This is to get the account open. Separate the live ones from the no-shows.

Well, I bought the radio. And it was the most magnificent piece of junk I ever owned. The tone was awful. The back kept falling off. The "On-Off" switch was loose.

The Brand X made a lasting enemy. The additive they added was customer fury.

The president still sends me cheery letters. I tear them up with hands and teeth and spit the pieces in the wastebasket.

The youngest daughter adores Blue Chip Stamps. We have to buy at Blue Chip Stamp stores — even though it costs more money.

The gas company gives us stamps.

The oldest daughter throws them in a drawer — she loves to stick them in books.

I could take the drawer up to Blue Chip. Turn it in for a new radio.

Beautiful Dresden Still Bears Scars

DRESDEN, East Germany (AP) — Once one of the most beautiful cities in Europe, Dresden has recovered from its night of fire but still bears the scars of its wounds.

This "Florence of the Elbe River" bears the over-all effects of a lost war but perhaps no other city in either Germany. But Dresden again takes pride in itself. Its symbol has become the Zwinger, a restored residential fortress and palace museum of August the Strong, the king of Saxony and Poland who ordered its construction in 1710.

It houses a gallery of old masters, a museum of medieval weapons and armaments and a porcelain collection featuring the Meissen china developed by the Saxon royal court as the first creation of porcelain in Europe. The Zwinger has an unrivaled place in the hearts of Dresden's 503,000 people. Its reconstruction by the end of 1964 was an emotional sign that the destruction of Feb. 13-14, 1945, was not complete and not forever. That bombing, by the British, remains controversial since Dresden was neither a war production nor military center. People here still do not talk easily about that searing night.

The phosphorus fire bombs set through everything they touched. They and detonation devices destroyed most of what had taken centuries to build. Much of the baroque elegance that gave Dresden its name as a center of artistic architecture simply disappeared in the holocaust.

Across the old market place, in the Protestant Church of the Cross, an old lady informed a visitor he would have to wait until morning to view the church but he was welcome to stay for a Bible hour about to begin.

In the other direction, a new apartment and hotel complex forms a foreground to a television tower complete with cable that marks a high point of postwar construction.

At the end of the terrace promenade lies the Hofkirche, a Roman Catholic cathedral. It has daily evening Mass and after work men and women with their children can be seen entering its side door to take part.

In Federal Experiment: Added Income Didn't Kill Work Incentive

By the Associated Press
The federal government gave $5 million to 650 working poor families to see if they would lose their incentive to work. Most of them didn't, says a preliminary study.

But neither did the guaranteed wage spur them to increase their job income over what was earned by a similar group of "controlled" families who were not given free money.

The experiment, conducted in five cities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania between 1968 and 1971, was the most exhaustive test to date of a guaranteed wage proposal.

"What we found was that people forecasting a negative income tax would be a disaster are apparently wrong," said David Kershaw, a private researcher who coordinated the experiment for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Some results of the study: Thirty-one per cent of the families in the experimental group — those getting the guaranteed income — increased their job income more than $5 during the first year of the study. In comparison, 33 per cent of the control group did not get the free money — showed a comparable increase.

About 25 per cent of the families getting money showed a decline in job earnings, compared to 23 per cent of those in the control group.

The study said the 2 per cent difference in both cases was too small to be considered significant.

The investigators weren't discouraged that the earnings of the cash recipients did not show any dramatic increase over those in the control group.

"All we're looking for is a zero effect," Kershaw said. "It's significant that the incentive doesn't take a nosedive."

"We're not saying the payments cause people to run out and get jobs. It's just that if they don't, it's not because of the incentive."

"We found very little cases of squandering," said one investigator. "Most people were glad to get the money and use it for the things they really need — food, clothing and shelter."

"This isn't to say that occasionally someone didn't run out and put a down payment on a purple Cadillac or something like that," the researcher said.

The experiment had a purpose beyond gauging behavior to government largesse, Kershaw said. Equally important, the researchers wanted to be able to present to Congress definitive statistics showing the costs of any negative income tax plan congressmen might want to consider.

"In most social legislation, you pass the law, and then sit back and see if it works," Kershaw said. "This time what we're doing in effect is saying, look — if you want to pass a negative income tax law, here are the different plans you can use and how much each of them will cost."

"We're not saying such a law should be passed, we're only trying to predict what will happen if it is," Kershaw said.

Anti-Discrimination Bill Advanced

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The Legislature Thursday tentatively decided to take authority back from the federal government in cases of alleged employment discrimination.

The action came as legislators gave 27-5 first round approval to LB265, a measure designed to put the state's anti-discrimination laws back on a par with federal laws.

In cases where the laws are the same, the state takes jurisdiction.

LB265 would lower from 25 to 15 the minimum number of employees which would bring an employer under the law's umbrella and would raise from 90 to 180 the number of days in which a complaint could be filed.

The bill was sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler at the request of the state Equal Opportunity Commission (EOC). The changes proposed in the bill were made at the federal level a year ago.

Earlier this week, legislators had amended LB265 to make the law less stringent, but senators Thursday agreed the measure should be made the same as the federal law to give jurisdiction to the state.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island won voice vote approval for his amendment to increase filing time from 30 days to 180, eliminating the lower provision put in the bill Monday.

Asians Resettle

London (AP) — The Home Office reported it accepted for resettlement in Britain 26,894 Asians expelled by Uganda in 1972.

14 Bills Are Introduced Revising Election Laws

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A package of 14 new bills variously revising Nebraska elections laws was introduced in the Legislature Thursday, raising the session total of introduced measures to 562.

At the same stage of the last 90-day session in 1971, bills totaled 1,089.

The 14 bills making up the election package, introduced at the request of Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann, have been nearly two years in preparation, Beermann said.

Introduction of the package had been held up to accommodate several court decisions related to residency, filling of

Governor Is 'Logical Executioner'

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha Thursday proposed that the governor be designated as the executioner under Nebraska's proposed new capital punishment law.

Chambers will offer his proposal as an amendment to LB268 when the bill reaches second stage floor consideration.

The bill, sponsored by Sen.

Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia at the behest of Gov. J. James Exon, appears headed toward eventual enactment. The governor is "the logical executioner," Chambers told newsmen.

"It cannot be the Legislature because it cannot administer the laws that it passes."

While the Legislature has "the awesome responsibility of passing the death penalty bill," the governor has "a way out" of capital punishment through his influence on the Pardon Board, Chambers said. As a member of the board, the governor can help commute a death sentence to life imprisonment, he noted.

Under the proposed amendment, the governor would be prohibited from delegating the responsibility of executioner to anyone else.

If the governor should fail or refuse to carry out his duties as executioner, the death penalty would be voided. "No execution shall occur" in that event, the amendment states.

Chambers, who opposes capital punishment, said "a lot of states are more enlightened than Nebraska" and do not permit the death penalty.

But here, he said, there are some people who "don't care if the individual were to be drawn and quartered by the first 20 people who could get to him."

LB268 would retain electrocution as the state's death penalty form.

The Legislature has already enacted a Chambers bill to repeal the old death penalty statute which was voided by the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision wiping out former capital punishment laws.

Solons Advance Child Abuse Reporting Plan On 25-0 Vote

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Thursday moved to require the reporting of child abuse cases in hopes of reducing instances of child beating.

Senators decided to wait until a later date before making a decision on religious questions in connection with the bill, LB207.

The bill, advanced from general file on a 25-0 vote, had been killed by the Judiciary Committee earlier by Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln was successful in overriding committee action on her bill.

The amended LB207 would establish a central registry for the reporting of child abuse cases and would require law enforcement agencies to make such reports. It would also change the methods by which complaints of child abuse by private citizens are handled.

Marsh said her bill would help in compiling accurate statistics about child abuse and could permit later preventive action.

Most of the debate about the bill centered around an attempt by Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett to add an amendment to the section defining child abuse, which now includes a prohibition against placing a child in a position where his or her health or life might be endangered.

Barnett said some religious groups do not believe in medical treatment and his amendment would have exempted from the law those persons holding such beliefs.

But Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha contended that the state has a right and a duty to protect children from abuse, even if that "abuse" occurs because a parent fails to have a sick child treated by a doctor because of religious beliefs.

Approval of Barnett's amendment would constitute recognition of a religion by the state, Chambers said, and would thus violate constitutional restrictions.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings defended the proposed amendment, saying he feels it is "perfectly legal" to recognize "religious practices" without that recognition being extended to a religion. Barnett finally concluded the matter by withdrawing the amendment and saying he would discuss the entire question with the attorney general's office to determine whether legal questions are involved.

Off-Street Parking Bill Is Advanced

A bill to facilitate the creation of off-street parking facilities in first and second class cities was sent to the floor after a public hearing Thursday by the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee.

The committee-sponsored measure, LB540, implements a constitutional amendment which voters approved last November.

A nonconstitutional defect had invalidated an off-street parking act previously passed, and the constitutional amendment in combination with LB540 would reinstate the act.

Essentially, the act permits creation of off-street parking districts which may levy taxes to acquire parking facilities and levy special assessments for the purpose.

LB540 drew no opposition and drew supporting appearances by representatives of several first class cities.

Also reported out without opposition was LB541, changing the manner in which special assessments for street improvements in first class cities become delinquent.

State Office Consolidation Resolution Sent To Floor

A resolution encouraging Gov. J. J. Exon's administration to consolidate within individual population centers those state offices now in scattered locations in such cities was endorsed unanimously and sent to the floor by the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee after a public hearing Thursday.

The Resolution, No. 21, was sponsored by Sen. John J. Cavanaugh III of Omaha and supported by the governor's office.

Don Nelson, director of the State Office of Planning, said Exon's office is interested in making state services provided in various cities more efficient and convenient to the citizen. Negotiations to consolidate offices already are under way in Omaha and North Platte, he said.

Various state agencies now are free to negotiate locations on their own, which results in multiple leases and scattering, and the resolution would support the administration in efforts to consolidate offices, Nelson said.

The resolution notes that "the proliferation of branch offices of state agencies housed in diverse locations has become inefficient, duplicative, excessively expensive and inconvenient for the citizens who must deal with such state agencies."

The resolution drew no opposition at the public hearing.

State Patrol Height Rule Is Lowered

The Nebraska State Patrol has lowered its height requirement for state troopers from 5'10" to 5'8", it was learned Thursday.

The Nebraska Mexican-American Commission and the American G.I. Forum have recently been pressing Col. J. E. Kruger to lower the height requirement so more Mexican-Americans might qualify for jobs as troopers. The 330-man patrol now employs three Mexican-Americans.

Although there was no formal statement, a recent announcement that the patrol has openings for troopers mentioned the 5'8" height requirement.

A spokesman for the patrol said the change was made last week in keeping with the height requirements of the majority of other law enforcement agencies.

Barnett Moves To Revive Tests

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln moved in the Legislature to override the action of the Agriculture and Environment Committee in killing LB66.

The bill would permit drug and alcohol tests on the bodies of traffic accident victims for the purpose of gathering statistical data.

The committee killed the measure on a 5-2 vote. Barnett's motion to reconsider will be debated at a later date.

State Department Official Sees Need For Inward-Looking Role

By PATTY BEUTLER

Star Staff Writer

The State Department should look inward in terms of bringing foreign policy to the people of the United States, remarked the deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs at a press conference in Lincoln Thursday.

And that is one of the tasks assigned to Miss Virginia R. Allan, who was invited to Lincoln to address a meeting of the Nebraska Legislative Ladies League.

Appointed to her present position by President Nixon a year ago, Miss Allan is responsible for the development of new and improved working relationships between the State Department and local, regional and national non-governmental organizations representing the range of public interests in U.S. foreign relations.

The public generally backs what President Nixon is doing in the sphere of foreign relations, Miss Allan observed from her many speaking engagements across the country.

On the question of aid to North Vietnam, she described the State Department's position as a "realistic approach" as well as being humanitarian. "Perhaps the North Vietnamese will have a greater stake in keeping the peace," she added.

However, she pointed out that the questioning on this issue, both by the public and by Congress, reflects "democracy in action" with its system of checks and balances.

Commenting on the isolationist stand the U.S. has taken following previous wars, Miss Allan believes that this is no time for "drawing within ourselves." Hers was a plea for "people-to-people diplomacy" because "peace can only be maintained by keeping communications open."

Miss Allan believes that the emphasis in foreign relations is moving from military confrontations to economic competitiveness. She sees this worldwide shift as helpful for the U.S. business system.

A staunch supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment, Miss Allan attributes to the women's movement the fact that she's in the State Department today. Although she feels that women have had greater opportunities more recently, she believes that they still have a long way to go.

Management Of NU Defended By Varner

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner said Thursday that his administration has already taken steps to correct a number of management problems outlined in an audit released by the state auditor's office.

"We believe it is fair to say that no aspect of university administration has had more attention during the past three years than has the management function," Varner said in individual letters to state legislators.

He said that "corrective action" was taken Oct. 1, 1972, to transfer the responsibility for collection of student loans from the Student Financial Aids Office to the university comptroller as suggested by an outside auditing firm.

The Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. audit, which was reported by The Star Thursday, found deficiencies in university management including overdrawn fund balances, failure to promptly collect on student loans, delay in the closing of NU's fiscal 1972 financial statement and the lack of a complete inventory.

Varner said, "Frankly, we believe the record is good."

Other areas where the consultants' suggestions are being implemented, Varner said, are the establishment of an outside public auditor and the hiring of an outside management firm (Cresap, McCormick and Page) to study university administration.

"Since this is the first outside public audit conducted for the University of Nebraska in its 104-year history, the news should have been, in my judgment, that there were so few criticisms of management procedures," Varner said.

$283,000 Received For Airport Improvements

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Thursday granted $283,000 for special improvements at the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

The funds will be used to help pay for grading in the new hangar area and for a new apron, according to Rep. Charles Thone, R-Nebr.

Other work includes relocating a service road and gas main, installing fencing and providing for drainage and seeding.

The road which will be relocated is the access road to Lincoln Air Park West, Airport Authority Executive Director Roland Harr reported.

The road will be moved to run parallel to the Burlington Northern Railroad track, he said, since the present winding road is unsafe.

The fencing will be installed as a security measure, Harr said, to meet tightened security regulations required by the FAA.

Construction on the project could get under way sometime this year.

The FAA grant provides for 50% of the cost of the improvements, with the remaining share coming from Airport Authority and state funds.

Broadened Federal Role Suggested For Adult Education

A broadened role by the federal government in making educational opportunities available to adults has been recommended in the 1973 annual report of the National Advisory Council on Adult Education.

The report was personally presented to Vice President Agnew last week by the members and staff of the council.

Lynn Roper Appointed United Campaign Director

Lincoln Community Services Director John Goessman announced Thursday that Lynn Roper had been appointed United Fund campaign director succeeding Jack Ahern who has resigned.

The announcement came at a regular LCS meeting at which LCS President Leo Beck also announced that Donald Ferguson had been named vice chairman of the 1974 campaign.

Ferguson a Lincoln Public Schools administrator, will work under Walter E. Nolte who was previously named 1974 campaign chairman.

Ms. Roper, 25, has been public information director for the community services agency for two years. Her principal activities have included planning

Dr. Leonard Hill of Lincoln, administrative director of adult education for the Nebraska Education Department, is chairman of the Advisory Council. Created in 1966.

The Adult Education Act of 1966 created the council to advise the President and Congress and requires it to provide reports on adult education activities.

and organization of the United Fund campaign.

Goessman said the agency is seeking a successor to her in that post although he said the job will be expanded to include other community relations as part of a reorganization of staff responsibilities.

Goessman also said that the agency is seeking a planning director as part of the reorganization. That person will fill the spot vacated by the resignation of Bob Shields who had been working largely in agency relations.

Goessman said the staff changes when the positions are filled will complete a reorganization of the LCS staff that began when an accountant was hired last summer.

The council report recommended that state grants for adult education be continued by the federal government and funded increasingly as the ability to improve adult education grows.

Education revenue-sharing was endorsed by the council, but it suggested that categorical grants for adult education be continued until adult education has become an integral part of the education enterprise a full fledged partner and can then become a segment of the delivery system titled Education Revenue Sharing.

"Contributed To Need" A "child-centered educational system which tends to be terminal in its approach has contributed to the need for adult compensatory education programs the council report stated.

"Second opportunities for the partially educated, the uninvolved, the illiterate, the adult with yesterday's tools in need of marketable skills for today," were recommended by the council.

Comprehensive lifelong learning systems are the goals envisioned by the council the report stated.

The Adult Education Act of 1966 expires in June. In 1972, the council recommended a new law but its 1973 report suggests a more gradual approach toward comprehensive adult education legislation.

Legislation Suggested
The council suggested legislation to provide state grants matched by federal funds for expenditures for adult education, funds allocated to the U.S. Office of Education for innovative experimental projects and funds for training adult education personnel.

The council suggested special programs for inmates of mental and penal institutions and that funds be provided for an organizational structure within the Office of Education for adult education.

The council report indicated 50 advisory councils should be created to advise state governments on adult education.

Cooper Nuclear Plant Draws Public Protest

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Auburn — What was expected to be a routine hearing on safety procedures for the Cooper Nuclear Plant also became a forum Thursday afternoon for protesting residents from just across the Missouri River.

More than 100 persons from Rockport, Mo., and environs overflowed the Nemaha County District Courtroom to question the plant's radiological safety. Under construction for five years, the $220 million facility is nearing operational status and will be loaded with nuclear fuel this August.

The meeting was scheduled for the testimony of officials from the Nebraska Public Power District, owners of the giant generating plant, to assure safety procedures prior to the granting of an operating license by the Atomic Energy Commission. Approximately three hours of testimony — much of it technical — was heard by a subcommittee of the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards. Claim Disputed

R. E. Reder, NPPD director of generation engineering, led several spokesmen who insisted that a "long, arduous and thorough" licensing process would assure safety to the public. In a small portion of the meeting allotted to the public, however, this was disputed by three Missouri spokesmen.

It was noted that more protests would have been filed except for an AEC notice in local newspapers requiring citizens to prepare to file 25 copies of their remarks prior to a 24-hour deadline. Dr. William R. Stratton of Los Alamos, N.M., subcommittee chairman, told reporters later a "series of errors" resulted in the 24-hour notice rather than the conventional two to three weeks.

Paul O'Konski, an attorney from St. Joseph, Mo., representing a group from Atchison County, Missouri, noted that an NPPD environmental report had failed to mention the existence of a packing plant only four miles across the river.

400 Employees
He said the Missouri Beef Packers operate a 400-employee plant which processes 3,012 cattle last year.

He also quoted from a January, 1973, letter written by Richard L. Seggel, acting assistant secretary for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, regarding the environmental impact of the Cooper station.

"It (the plant) does not appear to conform to the principal of limiting radiation exposures to as low as is practicable," Seggel was quoted. "It appears that there would be undue impact on the population due to radioactivity released."

Also objecting were state Rep. Hardin C. Cox of Rockport and Larry Stoner, a Rockport businessman. They indicated they were given special permission by the committee to testify.

Not Responsible
Dr. Stratton, noting that this is the first such public presentation encountered by the committee, said he was "absolutely overwhelmed" by the showing. But he added that his particular group's responsibility is to "ascertain the safety of the plant itself" rather than its environmental effect.

He added that further citizen testimony can be presented at another subcommittee meeting April 4 and at a full committee meeting April 12 or 13. Both sessions will be in Washington, D.C.

Several NPPD spokesmen attested to safety precautions which are being taken through such measures as a quality assurance program, regional monitoring and health physics training. They also noted that various emergency plans have been developed in case of accident.

Other subcommittee members were Dr. D. W. Moeller, Dr. Harry Monson and Harold Etherington. Among other NPPD spokesmen was Leo Lessor, Cooper plant superintendent.

400-Foot-Long Chasm Created In Pasture By Landslide

On the Ross Hays farm northwest of Steele City, one mile east of the Steele City canyons, the side of a hill has given way, creating a dam in a ravine.

Verlin Wheling, who lives near the area and discovered the slide, said sod, sumac bushes and trees tumbled with the landslide, resulting in a chasm

400 feet long in the pasture. At its deepest point it is about 45 feet across and 45 feet deep. Exceptionally wet weather in southeast Nebraska was blamed for the slide. (Star Photo)

Pollution Exemption For NPPD Denied

The Nebraska Department of Environmental Control Thursday denied Nebraska Public Power District's request to operate its Kramer Power Station in Bellevue in violation of state air quality standards through 1979.

DEC Director James L. Higgins in a brief statement directed NPPD to submit before April 30 a compliance schedule for the plant which would put the 113-megawatt station within air pollution standards by June 5, 1975.

Roger Hill, public relations manager for NPPD, said NPPD had planned to close the gas and coal-burning facility in 1975 and said the exemption had been requested so that it could continue to operate the plant without having to install new equipment.

Hill said such generators normally have a "life" of 30 to 35 years; the Kramer plant was built in 1949.

Although NPPD spent $887,000 last year on installing dust collectors to remove 83% of the particulates, Hill said, "there's no sense spending $2 to $3 million on a plant that's going to be closed down in six years."

Hill was unable to say whether the DEC ruling would hasten the shut-down of the Kramer station.

Forecast Calls For More Rain

Rainy weather continued throughout Nebraska Thursday. And the forecast calls for at least two more days of light rain in the east and possible light snow in the west and central areas of the state.

Topping the precipitation list was Deweese with .60 of an inch. Other amounts included .37 at Norfolk, .34 at Lincoln, .26 at Grand Island, .21 at Omaha and .20 at Wilber.

At Sidney there was three inches of snow on the ground early Thursday

Valentine Hospital Bonds OKd

Valentine (AP) — A $975,000 bond issue for construction of a new Cherry County Hospital in Valentine has been approved.

The vote in Wednesday's election was 1,492 in favor and 850 against. Counting of ballots from two precincts yet to report in addition to 156 absentee ballots would not change the outcome of the election.

The issue required a simple majority for approval.

Cherry County residents rejected a similar bond issue proposal last year.

Initial Plans Approved For Brownville Theatre

Auburn—Initial plans for the seventh year of the Brownville Village Theatre at Brownville were approved by the theatre board of directors during a meeting here.

Mrs. Ruth Smith, board chairman, said a budget of $21,757 was adopted by the board for the season that opens June 30 and winds up August 19.

Mrs. Smith said the theater must raise some $8,000 in gifts from individuals and business firms this year to help balance the budget as well as sell some 600 season tickets.

Four plays will be given in repertory during the summer. The theater will be directed by Prof. Henry Blanke Jr., head of the theater at Nebraska Wesleyan University. His wife, Phyllis, will be in charge of costumes, and Dennis Murphy, in charge of technical theatre at NWU, will again be technical director.

Other cast members, picked from theater alumni and students at NWU, have not yet been selected, Blanke said, and the plays to be given this year have yet to be chosen.

Blanke told the board that a request has already been made for 30 reservations for the opening night from a person in Dallas, Texas, who will be in the area for a family reunion.

The board re-elected Mrs. Smith as chairman; Robert Hemmingsen, Auburn, vice chairman; Jan Sipple, Nebraska City, secretary; and Randal Smith, Randolph, Iowa, treasurer. The resignation from the board of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Miller, Omaha, was received. The Millers are moving to Arizona.

Julie Francis

Tobias Girl Picked As Homemaker

Minneapolis, Minn. (UPI) — A senior at Meridian High School in Tobias, Neb., was named Thursday as Nebraska's 1973 Betty Crocker "Homemaker of Tomorrow."

Julie Francis, 18, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Francis, rural Tobias, was selected by General Mills, sponsor of the educational contest, for the honor from an original field of 8,450 seniors in 359 Nebraska high schools.

Competition was based primarily on performance in a written knowledge and attitude examination.

Miss Francis will receive a $1,500 college scholarship from General Mills and will be eligible for national honors for the "All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow" and three national runners-up to be announced May 3 in Washington.

Nebraska runner-up was Jane Marie Emanuel, 17, of North Bend Central High School in North Bend, who earned a $500 educational grant. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene F. Emanuel, rural North Bend.

2 Omaha Reporters Subpoenaed

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Two Omaha World-Herald reporters have been subpoenaed in connection with the sentences meted three Omaha men convicted of robbery in Douglas County District Court. The subpoenas also ask that the reporters bring notes used to write the articles.

The case involved Oscar Lee Johnson 21, Freddie Lee Williams 26, and Rufus Dennis Jones 26. They were found guilty in the robbery of the Beuhler Bros. Meat Market in February.

Judge John Burke sentenced Johnson and Williams to serve 15-45 years on a charge of robbery and 5 years on a charge of using a firearm in commission of a felony. Jones was sentenced to 10-30 years on the robbery charge and 5 years on the gun charge.

The day the men were sentenced, an article in the Omaha World-Herald quoted mayoral candidates H.F. Jacobberger and Edward Zorinsky as criticizing courts for not meting out tougher sentences to felons.

In a later interview, Judge Burke said public opinion played a part in the sentences which he gave Johnson, Williams and Jones.

Mike Levy, an attorney in the Public Defenders office who represents the three men, asked for a re-sentencing hearing, contending the World-Herald article unduly influenced sentencing of his three clients. He also asked that the reporters be subpoenaed and ordered to bring notes used in writing the stories.

Judge Burke issued the subpoenas.

Levy said the reporters "are not being asked to surrender their notes. I just wanted them (the notes) there, in case they needed them to refresh their memory."

A hearing is scheduled for April 6.

Anti-Boycott Campaign Launched

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation is launching "Operation Understanding" in an effort to counteract meat boycotts and the sudden drop in livestock prices experienced earlier this week.

have been invited to the Daniel Gerdes farm at Johnson at 10 a.m. Saturday to hear the farmers' side of the story.

The Gerdes farming operation is one of modest size that produces both hogs and cattle, according to M. M. Van Kirk, information director for the Nebraska Farm Bureau.

"We hope to stress understanding of the reasons behind meat prices rather than sympathy. We have to let people know that the average producer is not going to increase production of pork and beef in the face of meat boycotts and market disruptions caused by government controls," Van Kirk said.

Schwartzkopf of Lincoln, and a representative of the Omaha mayor's office have accepted invitations to come, according to Van Kirk.

Invitations have also been sent to Gov. J. James Exon and to Sen. Richard Proulx, speaker of the Legislature.

County Farm Bureau women's groups are planning to hold a series of meetings with consumer groups throughout the state as a follow-up effort to Operation Understanding, according to Van Kirk.

Green said the $500,000 would be spent for land, a wood chipper and operational expenses.

Rural Nebraskans Resist Meat Boycott

Howells (AP) — A proposed national meat boycott next week will be opposed by a group of citizens from this small community in northeastern Nebraska.

Mrs. Dennis Tomka said some 75 Howells area residents will direct a letter-writing campaign against the boycott to congressional leaders, news media and community leaders.

She said the letters will urge support of the livestock industry and will support resistance to attempts at a meat boycott.

Mrs. Tomka singled out city dwellers as boycott supporters and said small rural communities would not support such a move.

"If we farmers don't make any money, we won't buy anything in their town."

She said persons living in small towns supporting a boycott would defeat their own purposes.

The group met in Howells Wednesday night to discuss their opposition.

Iranian Officials Studying Nebraska Civics

Five district governors from Iran, accompanied by Miss Eftekhari Hajimirmirahabi of the State Department as an escort-interpreter, arrived in Lincoln Wednesday for a week-long stay. The group will study city, county and state government and observe the organization of a number of civic groups. They will also visit some farms and the University of Nebraska Field Laboratory at Mead. Official host for the visitors in Lincoln is the Mayor's Committee for International Friendship. (Star Photo.)

Trucker Killed In Accident

Kimball (AP) — A truck driver from Bellevue was killed late Wednesday night in a one-vehicle accident at the junction of U.S. 30 and Interstate 80 about three miles east of Kimball.

The State Patrol said the victim was Harvey Nelson, 31, of Bellevue. A passenger in the truck, 30-year-old Donald Corley of Fremont, was reported in satisfactory condition with neck injuries and facial lacerations.

Troopers said the eastbound truck apparently went out of control and into a ditch, then rolled.

Both occupants were pinned in the vehicle more than an hour.

Cycle Crash Claims Man

Norfolk (UPI) — Merlin Nelson, 24, Oakdale, died at a hospital here Wednesday of injuries received in a Feb. 11 motorcycle accident northwest of Tilden.

The death will not be counted on the state's traffic death toll since it occurred on private property.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the Seventh Day Adventist church at Neligh.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Nelson of Oakdale, and one brother.

Damage To Wheat Said Exaggerated

Reports of damage to the state's wheat crop are probably exaggerated according to crop experts at the University of Nebraska.

"We have had reports of dead wheat on hillsides and in low places. We are not sure what the problems are but it appears to be normal winter kill, drowning of wheat in low areas and possibly some greenbug damage from last fall," said Dr. Virgil Johnson, NU wheat breeder.

Dr. Johnson said the weather had been so bad that very few actual field examinations had been made yet this year.

"I am not concerned about the state's wheat crop at this point. There are some local problems but on the whole the crop is in good shape," he said.

Dr. Louis Palmer, NU plant pathologist, said he was going on an inspection trip to the northeast part of the state Thursday but did not expect to find much damage.

"We haven't had many reports from county agents of damage. There have been some indications of crown rot and some low areas had winter kill, probably from wheat drowning but generally speaking the crop is in good shape."

"If it happens to be your field that is damaged it is a serious matter but for the state as a whole it is not a major problem," he added.

a tour of the shops tells fashion story

Friday, March 30, 1973 The Lincoln Star 13

The gray, gloomy days to which we have been subjected for the past few weeks leave most of us longing for the refreshing, sunny days which are so typical of springtime.

However, to soothe such pining, we discovered on this week's tour of the shops that having a look at the colorful period to come provides a much welcomed relief. The lingerie and cosmetic selections for the coming season are reminiscent of spring flowers — in weight, appeal, and color.

AT BRANDEIS

The fresh, natural look, with its soft shine, will re-enter the fashion seen with the arrival of warmer, sunnier days. The soft shades, for eyes, nails, and lips will coordinate with the whites and pastels featured in our spring and summer wardrobes — all creating that super-natural look which, for most of us, continues to require the use of cosmetics — including color for the eyes, cheeks and lips — in order to accomplish that fresh appearance.

FOR STARTERS we found spring captured in the new Fresh Peach moisturizers, creams and other make-up preparations from Coty. The new concoctions not only remind us of fresh peaches, but they also help to bring the hidden peaches and cream complexion to the fore.

Facial masks also are great contributors to that often-sought natural look and we learned at Brandeis that Helena Rubinstein's new brush-on-peel off mask is one of the greatest cosmetic innovations for milady.

THE EYES HAVE IT, particularly if they reflect the new shiny, glittery look which is so eye appealing. The shades are soft, but add a delightful sheen to the completed effect. We found such glistening shades in most of the lines featured at Brandeis, including the Helena Rubinstein Shiny Stacklets — tiny pots of color which may be joined together for a more organized make-up collection. By the way, the Shiny Stacklets also contain contemporary colors for your cheeks and lips.

COLORFUL GLOSSES also are recommended for enhancing and protecting the lips during the blistering days which are just around the corner. Of course, the pastels also are found on the lipstick scene — and one of the newest variations is found in the sponge-on lip make-up from Love. This particular mode of applying lip color adds a delightful sheen in a variety of shades. And Max Factor whose flavored lip glosses in a compact form have long delighted women both young and old also has introduced several new shades and flavors.

BEWITCHING FINGERNAILS will continue to be in vogue during the forthcoming seasons — and pastels reflect the picture of things to come. For those who enjoy using a wide selection of polishes and colors, Revlon's Natural Wonder and Love plan to introduce small, dollar-priced, bottles of polish in nearly every shade imaginable, ranging from the pastels to the dark, darks.

INDIVIDUALITY IS THE WORD for the new cologne from Revlon. Named Charlie, this new product is reputed to provide a different fragrance on each and every person. Other new fragrances found on the cosmetic counters at Brandeis include Civet and Ambergis, two new scents from the makers of the popular Musk Oil — and Helena Rubinstein's new Crystal Essences also are both new and exciting, providing fragrances of such favorites as Musk, Lemon Jasmine, and Rain Water for the environmentally concerned women.

AT LORJEAN'S

Nothing is more feminine than smooth and soft lingerie and loungewear, and Lorjean's at Gateway displays a wide variety of styles in becoming shades of pastels.

MATCHING ROBES AND GOWNS Most of the gowns and robes that we saw at Lorjean's are constructed of 100% nylon accented with ribbons, lace covered buttons and colorful appliques.

One very becoming ensemble is attractively featured in baby blue. The long gown displays a low scoop neckline and short baby-doll sleeves. A narrow band of white nylon lace accents the neckline and encircles the Empire bodice above a fully gathered skirt, which ends in a three-inch ruffle.

The matching robe is constructed with a front zipper opening, straight long sleeves and a hood. The delicate lace trims the ends of the sleeves and is repeated in two narrow bands on each side of the zipper, extending onto the face-framing hood.

BABY DOLL PAJAMAS The variety of baby doll pajamas at Lorjean's ranges from frilly to attractively simple designs.

The exquisiteness of one relatively simple style is created by the use of novelty burnt lace, which is a patterned, see-through fabric. The short top is sleeveless and is contoured in the Empire mode, featuring three tiny buttons below the low scoop neckline. A very narrow band of nylon lace edges the neckline, armholes and hem, and the ensemble is completed by white nylon bikini pants.

A pinafore affect is created in a sleeveless, two-piece pajama set by a wide, soft ruffle, which extends over the shoulders on either side of an inset bib. The Empire bodice is contoured with a low square neckline and satin ribbon outlines the bib and also is used as a soft ribbon tie in the back.

PEIGNOIR SETS Elegance and high style take shape in white nylon crepe, when that fabric is used to create one particular design, which is available at Lorjean's in either long or short gowns and robes.

They have appeared on many television programs in this country, as well as participating in a number of foreign tours which have taken them to the British Isles, Australia, Europe, the Philippines and the Orient. In addition, their story has been told in the documentary motion picture "Young Americans."

The future plans for The Young Americans call for the establishment of a resident school for the philosophies and the performing arts which will focus on the arts as a viable tool for building a better world.

Attendance at the performance is open to Community Concerts subscribers only, however, individuals who purchase or have purchased tickets for the 1973-74 season will also be entitled to attend. The current membership campaign for next year's series will close on Saturday, March 31.

The event will be held in the Norris High School gymnasium and will feature members of the fifth grade, sixth grade, junior high, high school and stage bands.

Around Town

Well — Sunday is April Fool's day and we're wondering if the weatherman has any unusual pranks up his sleeves. One thing we know for sure, and that is the fact that no one is looking forward to any of those April showers that allegedly bring May flowers. March has taken care of the moisture situation rather vigorously.

☆☆☆

But regardless of what April may have in store, weatherwise, the activity calendar is growing rapidly. There are parties, parties AND parties, some large, some small — class reunions and, of course, weddings.

And the other day we did some talking about April being the month of homecomers, but March has its homecomers, also.

One of these is Mrs. E. C. Ames who returned to Lincoln on Wednesday evening from La Jolla, Calif., where she spent a late winter holiday.

La Jolla, as is Scottsdale and Sun City, Ariz., a haven for former Lincoln residents. Mrs. Ames, of course, saw considerable of Cdr. (Ret.) Philip Warren, USN, and Mrs. Warren — the former Louise Wilson. And La Jolla almost right next door to Rancho Santa Fe, there were visits with Mrs. J. E. M. Thomson.

Also residing in La Jolla are Mr. and Mrs. Max Foresman (Virginia Sartor) who, we are told have a new and beautiful home.

And of course there were the Richard Spanglers — but fortunately Lincoln still may claim Mr. and Mrs. Spangler as residents. Their home in La Jolla is strictly for the winter months.

☆☆☆

A week hence there will be numerous homecomers returning from Rome. At the moment they still are in Lincoln, but take flight this evening on the University of Nebraska tour which will be pointed in the direction of Italy's famous city.

Bridge: bidding quiz

B. Jay Becker

You have the following hand, both sides vulnerable:

♠QJ75♥6♦A94♣K10952

1. You pass, left-hand opponent passes, partner bids One Spade, and your right-hand opponent bids Two Clubs. What would you bid now?

2. Partner bids One Notrump and your right-hand opponent bids Two Hearts. What would you bid now?

3. Partner bids One Notrump and your right-hand opponent bids Two Diamonds. What would you bid now?

4. Partner bids One Heart. When you respond Two Clubs, he raises to Four Clubs. What would you bid now?

1. Four spades. Of course you could double and beat two clubs badly if the bidding ended then and there, but your double would have to survive a pass by each of the other characters at the table before you could start counting your chickens. It is far more likely that your opponents would discover a heart or diamond fit, perhaps quite a good one, if you doubled, and it is therefore better to eliminate that possibility by leaping straight to four spades.

It would be wrong to bid only three spades, which is not forcing. It is hard to imagine four losers, once partner opens with a spade. The hand takes on a new look when partner bids spades, and becomes equivalent to an opening bid.

2. Three hearts. Most players treat two spades or three clubs in this sequence as merely competitive and not forcing, and it is therefore preferable to make a bid that will lead to game. You hope partner will bid three spades, in which case you'll raise him to four. If his rebid is three notrump, indicating heart strength, pass. If he bids four clubs or diamonds, raise him to five.

3. Double. Game is not certain and it is best to grab the sure profit. You can probably beat two diamonds two or three tricks.

4. Four diamonds. A slam seems imminent, and the question is how or whether to reach it. Four diamonds shows first-round control and interest in a slam; if you wanted only a game, you would bid five clubs over four.

The next step is up to partner. If he bids four spades or four notrump, you are on the way to six or seven, but if all he does is bid five clubs, you must withdraw because of the likelihood of losing two spade tricks.

ABBY: find a date for her

DEAR ABBY. A group of couples have been attending a Saturday night dance together for a number of years. We are all good friends. Recently one couple divorced and the lady continued to attend these dances as a "single."

For a while the group accepted her to help her over her adjustment period. The gentlemen in the crowd continued to dance with her as they always had, but this created a problem, for one of the wives was always left to sit out the dance while her husband danced with "Single."

Abby, don't you think "Single" should realize that she is creating a problem and should drop out of the group until she obtains a partner? How can we end the dilemma, but still be friends?

"SITTING DUCK"

DEAR SITTING: Put yourself in "single's" place and be a little more charitable. The life of a single is lonely and difficult and those Saturday night dances are probably her only opportunity to socialize.

Ask your husbands if they can't come up with a single man who could be her partner on those Saturday nights. Singles need all the help they can get.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful hairdresser with whom I have a standing appointment once a week. I am a busy woman and like to get in and out of the beauty parlor as quickly as possible. My problem is that my hairdresser is a chatty person, and he talks with his hands! He just about drives me crazy, wasting all that time gesturing. How can I tell him to WORK WITH HIS HANDS. NOT TALK? No names, please. I need him more than he needs me.

IN A HURRY

DEAR IN: It's time you did a little talking. With the VOICE, lady.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Teacher Pay Hike Of 5.5% Mentioned

Lincoln Board of Education negotiators Thursday told Lincoln Education Association representatives in an unofficial session that they were ready to recommend a pay increase of slightly more than 5 1/2%.

The LEA bargaining team immediately said it would discuss the proposal with the board of directors of the teachers association.

mal offer to the teachers, since it was mentioned in an informal bargaining session.

Not Official
That means that the offer may not have the firm backing of the school board, and thus cannot be officially proposed.

If eventually formally offered, however, and if accepted by the LEA team, it would represent a mid-point between the last two formal proposals from each side.

The school board team proposal did not constitute a for-board's was about 4.9%.

The percentages reflect the expected overall increase in pay and fringe benefits for all teachers, assuming the same individuals return.

Thus, this includes additions to the salary schedules as well as pay boosts anticipated when teachers gain another year of employment. The percentages would also include the additional cost of improved fringe benefits.

Not Made Public
The board team did not make public details of what portion of the informal offer constituted wage increases and what portion would be fringes.

The informal session was adjourned after about two hours, with the LEA negotiators saying they would be prepared to respond to the suggestion after they study it in detail and discuss it with the LEA board.

That statement indicated that, for the moment at least, the LEA team intends to continue negotiations.

Late last week it appeared the talks might come to a halt, since LEA building representatives ordered no further compromising.

But the LEA board told its team to go back to the table anyway, and Thursday's informal session was arranged.

Choice Said Needed On Growth Patterns

The question before people of mid-America today is whether they will allow more and more people to concentrate in a few population centers and cope with ensuing problems, or move consciously to make small communities more attractive.

In posing that question Thursday, Hugh Denney of Columbia, Mo., said he sees now a dilemma in the lack of a development plan to provide the highest possible level of services in the farthest outreaches of rural America.

Denney, chairman of the University of Missouri regional and community affairs department, addressed the issue of growth to participants in the two-day Mid-America Non-Metropolitan Conference in Lincoln.

Identify Needs
The conference, sponsored by the Federal Regional Council and the four states in Region 7—Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska—is designed to identify the needs and problems in developing rural America.

About 130 participants, including civic leaders and state and federal agency officials, will write three position papers Friday on growth/non-growth, land use and the quality of life in rural America, according to Chairperson Marie Arnot of the State Economic Development Department.

Denney pointed out that population growth in Nebraska follows the route of Interstate 80. Do you like it that way? he asked or should Nebraskans concentrate on strengthening outlying centers such as Beatrice, McCook or Fremont, for example.

Denney said he supports growth planning by local people, making "deliberate plans to close gaps" such as lack of hospitals, schools and transportation facilities, to make rural areas more attractive.

Upper Limit
Responding to non-growth proponents, Denney said a maximum of 400,000-500,000 people provide a sound economic base for a city. "There are very few things that you need that have to be supported by more people than that."

But he explained he would not limit growth; rather, he would offer people "viable options, a wide range of life styles," so that they can live where they choose.

Rural America now does not supply those options, he said. Jim Turgeon, government relations coordinator of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) in Kansas City, was one of nine federal officials who briefed conference participants Thursday.

Resource People
The officials attended as information resource people to aid participants in drawing conclusions for the position papers.

While the abolishment of the OEO could have direct impact on the quality of life in rural America, Turgeon said, "Of the 11 major activities that OEO has been engaged in, only one (community action agencies) is being phased out in the '74 fiscal year."

More Pyramid Sales Schemes Expected

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Pyramid sale operations will continue to appear in Nebraska and state officials will soon be moving into the enforcement of environmental regulations, speakers Thursday told county attorneys from across the state.

Calvin Robinson, assistant state attorney general, and James Higgins, director of the State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) spoke during a spring seminar sponsored by the Nebraska County Attorneys Association.

Robinson said that although Glenn Turner, notorious for allegedly starting pyramid sales operations, has run into difficulty recently, those formerly in Turner operations are starting their own operations.

'Fast Buck'
"If anything, Turner was able to convince people that you can make a fast buck," Robinson said. "People in his operations have been trained and have an ability to make a hard sale."

"We're going to see spinoffs where people set up in a motel room for a couple weeks and then move on," Robinson said.

In pyramid sales operations those who invest in a company are given commissions for getting someone else to invest in the company, as well as for selling an alleged product.

Operations Sued
Robinson said two of Turner's operations, Koscot and Dare To Be Great, have been sued in a "majority of the states."

Robinson told the county attorneys that a "good weapon" in stopping the pyramid sales operations can be used if it can be proved that the corporation is doing something illegal.

If that can be proved, he said, the corporation can be put into receivership and if the corporation's officers participated in the illegal acts, their personal assets can be pursued.

James L. Higgins, director of DEC, said the agency is nearing the point where it can be "serious" about enforcement.

No Foundation
"Up to now we really haven't got into enforcement because we haven't had the legal foundation," he said.

However, Higgins cautioned that he doesn't anticipate a "landslide" of cases to be brought to court.

"I don't measure the success of pollution controls by the number of court cases," Higgins said. "Sometimes I think the federalists do."

"I'm convinced you can't sit up here in Lincoln and run the whole show without the cooperation of local officials," Higgins said.

Higgins told the county attorneys they may be asked to prosecute violators of environmental regulations if a violator does not comply after a 30-day notice and a DEC hearing on the matter.

'Help Courts' Is Law Day Theme

"Help our courts achieve justice," will be the theme of Law Day 1973, it was announced Thursday at a luncheon kicking off preparations for Law Day on May 1.

Nebraska Supreme Court Justice Lawrence Clinton said that the court system has had poor public relations recently and that Law Day provided an opportunity to remedy that.

He said that the national news media has given attention only to a few "bad" cases. He said these cases were exceptions and should not be allowed to "color the whole picture" of the court system.

"The facts don't bear out the charge that the courts are coddling the criminal," Clinton said.

Gov. J. J. Exon, a guest speaker at the luncheon sponsored by the Nebraska Bar Association, said that Nebraska has a good, working court system.

However, Exon said that improvement could be made. He said suspects in misdemeanor cases should be brought to trial more quickly, and that suspects in misdemeanor cases should be released on their own recognizance more often.

At the opposite end of the spectrum, Exon said, suspects in felony cases should not get out on bond as easily as they now do. Exon also promised that he would veto a bill to expand the public defender system. The bill is now pending in the state Legislature.

Exon said the bill was a "piece of do-gooder legislation" that ignores the responsibility of local governments to provide public defenders when needed.

Exon said public defenders should be hired by local governments on a part-time basis, rather than creating "another bureaucracy of attorneys across the state which are paid by the state."

Hendrick Aids Indians To Win Over Oakland

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Hendrick slammed three of Oakland's experimental orange baseballs out of the park to lead Cleveland to an 11-5 rout of the A's Thursday in an exhibition game.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was in the stands to watch the first time in spring training Oakland owner Charles O. Finley suggested that they be used in an effort to jazz up baseball.

Hendrick, traded away from Oakland just last week, had a single in addition to his three homers and drove in five runs overall against his former teammates.

Johnny Bench also put on a hitting show, although not quite as lusty, knocking in a pair of runs with two hits to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Wayne Simpson, allowed only five hits in pitching the Kansas City Royals to a 4-2 triumph over the Montreal Expos in a game halted after seven innings because of darkness.

Don Baylor's leadoff homer in the eighth inning boosted the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees. Baylor connected off Steve Kline, who had just entered the game.

Gary Gentry pitched seven innings of two-hit ball as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0. The loss was the fifth straight for the National League's defending East champions.

Cleo James' two-out single scored Glenn Beckert with the winning run in the 12th inning as the Chicago Cubs defeated the San Francisco Giants 9-8.

Rain canceled four games—Philadelphia at Houston, Texas vs. Minnesota and contests involving split Milwaukee squads with Los Angeles and California.

Foreman Views Norton Prepare For Ali Fight

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Muhammad Ali is a 5-1 favorite to beat muscular Ex-Marine Ken Norton of San Diego Saturday but new heavyweight champion George Foreman isn't so sure.

"Besides me," Foreman said, "I think Ken's the strongest heavyweight in boxing. I think Ali's going to have a lot of trouble, particularly if he's taking Ken lightly."

"I'm impressed with his body punches and strength. I think it's going to be a heckuva fight."

Foreman, the Houston strong-boy, arrived here Wednesday and watched Norton spar four rounds. He will be at ringside when the 31-year-old Ali and Norton, 28, meet in a 12-round bout in the 14,500-seat San Diego Sports Arena.

Stander Falls To Jordan

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — John Jordan, 196, of Norfolk, Va., scored an upset Thursday night with a unanimous decision over Ron Stander, 233, of Council Bluffs, Iowa in a 10-round heavyweight fight.

Stander's last fight was in May, 1972, when he lost a heavyweight title bout with Joe Frazier.

Jordan took control in the first round when he opened a cut over Stander's right eye. Stander's eye was swollen shut by the end of the fight.

Stander's professional record now stands at 25-2-1, while Jordan is 26-3-3.

In a co-featured, Macka Foley, 185, of Portland stopped Oscar Freeman, 173, of Norfolk.

WINE PRICES ARE SPIRALLING UPWARDS ..

Buy now before higher replacement costs and the impact of the dollar devaluation take effect during Spring. The latest facts about the present wine situation are:

Newspaper and economic reports have made us aware that current prices from Europe have risen 20 to 40% in the last six months. This increase has been caused both by the devaluation of the dollar and the short supply of wine. The 1972 wine crop in Italy, France and Germany was down about one third. The state of California has had three successive "bad" years. The tremendous increase in the demand for good wines has caused an unprecedented shortage which is just now being felt. The wine buyer has not yet felt the full impact of the price increase because most of today's offerings are based on "in stock" inventories * that is, wines purchased before the increase. The full effect will start being felt beginning about the first of May. What should the intelligent shopper do? Those with foresight are already aware of market conditions and have protected themselves by ordering their favorite wines now. MITCH TAVLIN, the Wine Merchant in Lincoln strongly urges you to come in now while his assortment of the world's greatest wines is complete. Shop and make your selection at leisure from a vast inventory of magnificent wines from every major wine producing region in the world. Our much higher replacement costs will cause us to increase our prices. Now is the time to act. Remember—Wine is your best investment—either for personal pleasure or as a hedge against further inflation and erosion of the purchasing power of the Dollar. Let Mitch Tavlin, Pete Rossitto or any member of our staff assist you in making your selection. Remember—that any wine which we recommend and that does not please you won't cost you one penny!

Lakers, Carolina Favorites As Pro Basketball Playoffs Begin

By The Associated Press
The Los Angeles Lakers and the Carolina Cougars share the favorites' roles in the post-season playoffs of the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association, starting Friday night.

The defending champion Lakers drew the Chicago Bulls as an opening opponent after a coin toss which gave the Milwaukee Bucks the Golden State Warriors as their first round foe. Opening games are set Friday night in Los Angeles and Milwaukee.

The coin toss became necessary when Los Angeles, winner of the Pacific Division, and Milwaukee, Midwest champion, finished with 60-22 records in the Western Conference. The Players Association vetoed a scheduled playoff game between the two.

All of the opening series in both leagues are best-of-seven. The NBA playoffs determine division champions who then must meet for the conference crowns and, after that, the league championship.

In the Eastern Conference, the New York Knicks open against the Baltimore Bullets at Madison Square Garden Friday night while the Boston Celtics delay the start of their series until Sunday, playing the Atlanta Hawks in Boston.

The ABA playoffs also begin Friday with two games in the Eastern Division. Carolina and New York start their best-of-seven set in Greensboro, N.C., and Kentucky's defending champions go against Virginia at Louisville's Convention Center.

The NBA's unique coin toss was executed via long distance telephone. Golden State was the Pacific Division runner-up and the No. 4 team in the Conference. Chicago, No. 3, had a better won-lost record in finishing second to the Bucks in the Midwest Division.

In the NBA Eastern Conference, the Baltimore Bullets finished on a high note, winning 26 of their last 38 games for the Central Division crown, and became a strong threat to beat the Knicks, the 1972 Eastern title winners.

The Celtics beat out the Knicks in the Atlantic Division with the best record in the NBA, 67-14, and the league's most valuable player, Dave Cowens.

Carolina won the East Division in the ABA with a won-lost mark of 57-26, while Kentucky was a close runnerup with 56-28.

However, the Carolina Cougars suffered a last minute disappointment when it was learned that center Mike Lewis must undergo an operation and will be out for six weeks.

Utah won the ABA West Division with a 55-29 mark, edging Indiana, which won 51 games and lost 33.

Overhaul Of OTB Urged For N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and the legislature's Republican leaders endorsed Thursday an overhaul of the off-track betting structure in New York State.

The trio emphasized in a statement that New York City and Schenectady, the only two cities now with off-track betting operations, should be protected from loss when the betting laws are revised.

The statement issued by Rockefeller, Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson and Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea said in part:

"It is apparent that without better integration of off-track betting with the horse racing industry, both may fail. Certainly off-track betting cannot operate without racing, but uncoordinated and unrestricted development of off-track betting can undermine and possibly destroy racing by cutting attendance and making it impossible for the tracks to continue in business."

The general findings of the special Delafield Commission, named by Rockefeller to study the future of horse racing, were endorsed by the three leaders.

They did not comment directly on the specific recommendations, such as a state takeover of off-track betting operations, more money for race track owners, and restrictions on the type of bets that could be accepted by betting parlors.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — A federal grand jury returned sealed indictments Thursday in an investigation of alleged race-fixing at Finger Lakes Race Track.

A spokesman for the U. S. Attorney's office said charges included sports bribery and perjury. The spokesman said the names of those indicted would be revealed when they were arraigned.

The grand jury began its investigation in November, after allegations were made by some persons, including jockeys, of race-fixing at the thoroughbred track, located in Ontario County near Canandaigua.

Watergate Called 'GOP Espionage'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, Jr., R-Conn., said Thursday he thinks the Watergate bugging was just a part of GOP political espionage and sabotage against the Democrats last year that he said, was directed by someone in the White House.

Weicker told a news conference that on the basis of his own investigating he thinks he knows who this person is but he declined to say.

At the same time Weicker said he has "absolute confidence that President Nixon knew nothing about these tactics. However, he said he wished Nixon would let top aides testify at the hearings of a special Senate investigating committee.

Weicker, a member of the committee, confirmed press reports that convicted Watergate defendant James W. McCord Jr. had testified secretly Wednesday he had been told former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell approved plans for the bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex.

However, Weicker said there was "no corroborative evidence of any kind"—documentary or otherwise—to support what McCord reportedly testified had been told to him by G. Gordon Liddy, also convicted in the Watergate break-in and bugging.

Weicker said McCord's entire testimony was based on conversations with Mr. Liddy.

Earlier Mitchell issued a statement denying he had approved plans to wiretap the Democratic headquarters.

"I deeply resent the slanderous and false statements about me concerning the Watergate matter reported as being based on hearsay and leaked out of the Ervin committee," Mitchell said.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D-N.C., not present for Wednesday's testimony by McCord, is chairman of the special committee set up by the Senate to investigate the Watergate affair and other alleged political espionage and sabotage in last year's presidential campaign.

Charles W. Colson, who repeated his denial of having any knowledge of the break-in and bugging, sharply criticized the press for what he called maligning White House aides.

"I had no involvement and no knowledge of the Watergate, direct or indirect," Colson said.

The Senate devoted considerable time Thursday to the Watergate case.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, a Maryland Republican, said in a speech that this case is one reason why "a significant number of people are losing faith in the validity and purpose of our government."

Mathias spoke after Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Republican senators are concerned about the growing political impact of the Watergate case.

Prospects For Peace 'Greatly Decreased'

Pine Ridge, S.D. (UPI) — Sen. James Abourezk said Thursday the collapse of a mutiny inside Wounded Knee "greatly decreased" prospects of a negotiated settlement with Indian occupiers. Nevertheless, the first face-to-face negotiations of the week took place.

Abourezk said about 100 Oglala Sioux inside the besieged hamlet were willing to consider an end to the 30-day occupation of Wounded Knee, but they had been put down at gunpoint by leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM).

Shortly after Abourezk's statement was issued in Rapid City, S.D., the government's No. 1 negotiator and a leader of the militants holding Pine Ridge dickered by short wave radio and the first face-to-face talks this week to end the occupation followed.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell announced that Dennis Ickes, a civil rights official with the Justice Department, went into the village to talk with AIM chiefs.

"It's a step in the right direction," Frizzell said.

There were reports that Marlon Brando, who spurned an Academy Award saying he was going to Wounded Knee instead, was in the area.

Sheriff Clyde Rayhill of neighboring Bennett County said a man who identified himself as Brando called Wednesday night and asked for an escort into Wounded Knee. Rayhill, whose base in Martin, S.D., is 30 miles east of Wounded Knee, said he turned the caller down.

Even if the man got to the reservation, "they wouldn't let him in anyway," Rayhill said.

Rayhill said "two or three persons" saw a man fitting Brando's description drinking coffee at a highway cafe at Martin Wednesday night.

Ramon Roubideaux, an attorney for the AIM forces who seized Wounded Knee in an armed coup 30 days ago, denied there was dissension among the occupiers.

Frizzell said he arranged Ickes' venture into the barricaded camp in a talk on short-wave radio with Dennis Banks, one of the two key leaders of the Indians. He said the meeting, at Banks' suggestion, was being held in the "Tepee Chapel," a Church of God church.

Frizzell said Banks wanted to know Ickes' credentials as a negotiator and whether he was an expert in Indian treaty law.

Officials Rule Wilcox's Death Was Accidental

Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — Pennington County officials have ruled that the death of Pine Ridge Tribal Councilman Leo Wilcox was accidental and due to asphyxiation.

The body of the 52-year-old Wilcox was found in a burning car eight miles northwest of scenic Sunday night.

Wilcox was an outspoken opponent of the takeover of Wounded Knee by members of the American Indian Movement and there had been some speculation that his death was connected with that situation.

Pennington County Coroner George Behrens said he had found no evidence of foul play. He said the body was identified by jewelry and dental x-rays.

Rapid City Fire Marshal Ken Froelich said the fire did not appear to have been set.

Council District Question Discussed

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

In a round table discussion on the merits of electing City Council members by district, proponents argued that the ward system would make city lawmakers more accountable to the people.

Additionally, proponents told a handful of people attending a YWCA "town meeting" Thursday night that district representation would:

- cut down on campaign expenses, allowing the salaried worker and lower income to serve on the council.
- result in a shorter ballot, thus allowing the electorate to be more informed on the candidates running for office.

Opponents contended that such a system would:

- needlessly split up the city into factions.
- lead to a narrower viewpoint on the issues facing the city.
- result in political corruption through vote trading and gerrymandering.

On the May 1 general election ballot, Lincolnites will vote on a charter amendment calling for the district election of council members.

Currently, all seven are elected at large.

Events Reviewed

Leading off the discussion, City Councilwoman Helen Boosalis reviewed events leading to the placing of the amendment on the ballot.

She noted that Lincoln state senators introduced a bill in the Legislature calling for the district election of Lincoln city council members.

The council opposed the measure, contending that the Legislature's action was an infringement of the city's home rule powers.

To ward off further action on the bill, the council agreed to place the question on the ballot to let the people decide, she said.

Share Problems

Low-income spokesman Bea Richmond argued that if council members were elected by district, "They would live with our problems, too."

"When the streets get muddy—they'd have to wade through them to get to work—just like us," she said.

Disagreeing, attorney Chauncey Barney contended that most of Lincoln's problems are city-wide ones.

"A muddy road is a muddy road—whether you live in Clinton, College View or at 4th and F," he quipped.

"I'd like to dream of the friendly fellow living just around the corner from me, but the system's not going to work like that," Barney said.

7 South, 40% North

Mrs. Richmond pointed out that all seven council members live south of O. The 40% living north of O don't feel represented, she said.

Barney suggested that the district system would then lead to vote trading, gerrymandering and political patronage.

However, Robert Sittig, University of Nebraska associate professor of political science and chairman of the Charter Revision Committee, denied that the issue is one of political patronage or where councilmen live.

18 After 3 Spots

Noting that 18 candidates are seeking three council seats in Tuesday's primary election, Sittig commented, "The average voter just isn't that interested in public affairs."

A district system "chops the choice down into manageable size," he said.

Bruce Winter, professor of political science at the university, accounted for the fact that more councilmen have lived south of O because they are self-employed or professional people.

Winter said those living north of O tend to be salaried or wage earners who could not afford to run or serve on the council.

"No Shortage"

However, Sittig noted, "There hasn't been a shortage of candidates from northeast Lincoln—they just haven't gotten elected."

Panel members agreed that the charter amendment calling for a council pay increase to $4,000 annually may be the more important issue in the long run. That question is on Tuesday's ballot.

Mrs. Richmond said a number of people would run for the council—but they cannot afford to pay campaign expenses or to serve at the present $20 weekly salary.

Mrs. Boosalis said she was bothered by the amount of money spent on council campaigns.

"The district system would make it easier to get elected," she commented.

Students Studying Death

As part of their English class, Fife High School students inspect the mausoleum at the Sumner, Wash., cemetery. The students quizzed the cemetery manager about burials, cremation, crypts and vaults. Their high school, which is just outside Tacoma, Wash., is thought to be the only one in the country with a course that is investigating death.

New Pact Assures Steel Labor Peace

The New York Times

Pittsburgh, Pa. — The United Steelworkers Union Thursday approved an unprecedented agreement that virtually assures labor peace in the steel industry through July, 1977, and perhaps longer.

I. W. Abel, president of the USW, disclosed details of the preliminary union-management agreement, which was approved by the Basic Steel Industry Conference, made up of 600 local union presidents and officers.

Abel described the plan as "an unprecedented experiment that we think will prove there is a better way for labor and management to negotiate contracts."

R. Heath Larry, sitting beside the silver-haired union leader, R. Heath Larry, vice chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. and chairman of the negotiating committee for 10 of the nation's major steel producing companies, commented:

"This should work for the benefit of the employees, the company, its customers and the nation."

Both Abel and Larry said the agreement is expected to reduce steel imports that have adversely affected the domestic industry, do away with "doom and bust" stockpiling by the industry's customers in anticipation of strikes, and reduce layoffs and unemployment. Imports have been blamed for eliminating 150,000 steelworker jobs and layoffs totaled about 100,000 after the 1971 agreement was signed.

Abel and Larry said the pact guarantees uninterrupted production in the American steel industry for its duration and Abel voiced the hope it will continue indefinitely.

The present three-year contract between the USW and the 10 coordinating committee steel companies expires Aug. 1, 1974. But Abel said the union and industry began discussing such an agreement in 1967 and negotiated it during the last several years.

The agreement provides binding arbitration for unresolved issues in 1964 negotiations and prohibits strikes by the union or lockouts by the company to support their bargaining positions.

In their joint statement, Abel and Larry said deadlocked contract negotiations in the past have resulted in economic losses for both the industry and employees and a devastating economic impact on communities in almost every state where there are steel operations.

Members Know

Abel said the 600-member Basic Steel Industry Conference board, which met here for two days, has the authority to approve the agreement but that the rank and file membership has been acquainted with its details through talks by Abel and the union publication, "Steel Labor."

He conceded, however, that some of the conference board members had expressed some doubts about the agreement, particularly about binding arbitration.

The agreement, covering 350,000 employees in the basic steel industry, provides a minimum wage increase of 3% each on Aug. 1 in 1974, 1975 and 1976.

Pentagon To Reduce Military Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Admitting it made "bad estimates" resulting in high cost overruns, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday that among other things it is giving up desire to get the most modern technical advances into its weapons.

Fred P. Wacker, deputy Pentagon budget controller, told the House Armed Services Committee the military also will have to buy fewer weapons with the money it can expect to get from Congress.

"In large parts of our program the financial constraint will govern," Wacker told the committee investigating cost overruns. "We will have to forego technological gains, otherwise achievable, to stay within this financial constraint."

Wacker said the sophisticated technology that gives a weapon "the last few points" of ultimate performance add immensely to its cost.

"It is these we must, in some instances, forego," he said. He gave no examples. A notable one was the night vision, shoot-on-the-run computers and other features that ran the Main Battle Tank 70 cost up to $1 million a tank before it was scuttled as too expensive.

Wacker said overall weapons spending has gone up only $1 billion in the past 10 years despite spiraling weapons costs because some $9 billion a year has been diverted to it from strategic forces and aircraft purchase quantities have been cut from 1,800 a year then to 500 now.

But he said these measures have "substantially run out the string."

Technology will continue to drive weapons cost up and it is not realistic to expect Congress to approve a major increase in weapons money, he said. So the answer can only be less quantity and less technological sophistication, he added.

25 Districts Face Desegregation Orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 25 districts are in Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

"We are taking this action only because we are required to do so by the court order," said Peter E. Holmes, acting director of HEW's Office for Civil Rights.

The lawsuit, decided on Feb. 16 by District Court Judge John H. Pratt, was brought two years ago by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund which alleged that HEW had made only token efforts in enforcing the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The administration twice lost attempts to stay the order. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is scheduled to hear oral arguments April 16 on the government's appeal.

Holmes told the 25 districts: "I must request that you develop a plan which will eliminate the vestiges of your former dual school system at the opening of the school term beginning in the fall of 1973."

Federal officials conceded privately that further desegregation in at least some of the 25 districts may require additional busing of children.

Retired Lincoln Policemen Honored

Three former high-ranking police officers who have retired from the Lincoln Police Department in recent months were honored Friday at a luncheon at the Legion Club. From left to right they are former Inspector Eugene Henninger, former

Inspector Robert Sawdon and former Lt. Arthur Aksamit. Their former colleagues in the Lincoln Police Dept. chipped in to buy them briefcases and desk pen sets. It was announced they would also receive gold retirement badges. The luncheon was attended by approximately 250 guests, mainly from the Lincoln Police Department, the Lancaster Sheriff's Office, the Nebraska State Patrol and other law enforcement agencies. (Star Photo)

Kenny Institute Soliciting Funds

The Sister Kenny Institute is currently conducting a fund drive in Lincoln, according to Karen M. Reimann, district director

A story in last Sunday's Journal and Star about the Epilepsy Council of Lincoln erroneously reported the Cancer Fund as the only organization legally conducting drive at this time.

However, the City Clerk's office Thursday confirmed that a permit has been issued to the Sister Kenny Institute for fundraising from March 1 to May 1 of this year.

Miss Reimann said a door-to-door solicitation is planned in residential areas only.

Valley County Ready Plans For Big Centennial Celebration

ORD, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska's Valley County is 100 years old and the wheels have been set in motion in the county for a memorable centennial celebration.

A county-wide centennial organization has been formed, officers named and committees chosen for a celebration at Ord, the county seat, from July 28-30.

Activities on the agenda are an historical contest, brothers of the brush contest, celebration belles contest, queen contest and promenade in Ord, North Loup, Arcadia and Elyria. In addition, a centennial seal contest is being planned and a theme for the celebration will be chosen.

The events of this year had their beginning back in 1872 when five Danes staked a claim two miles northwest of Ord. Their names were George Miller, Nels Anderson, Peter Mortensen, Christian Frey and Jeppe Smith.

The following year, another group settled in North Loup. Elyria also was settled that year and George McKellar became the first settler in the Arcadia area.

North Loup was incorporated before Ord, but Ord became the county seat because it was more centrally located. The area soon prospered, largely because of the fertile land and ample water supply of the North Loup Valley.

Prairie fires, severe blizzards, grasshopper invasions and periods of drought all combined to test the early Valley County residents.

The latter problem, however, was solved when irrigation projects on the North Loup and Middle Loup Rivers were completed in 1938.

Reform Bill Guarantees Full Pension In 15 Years

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Labor Committee Thursday unanimously approved a pension reform bill that would guarantee 100% retirement rights in private plans after 15 years with the same employer.

The measure, which would affect some 35 million workers in private plants, also would set up an employer-financed insurance program to guard against fund failures and provide for voluntary portability between pension plans.

The measure would provide a vesting requirement that would guarantee 30% pension rights after eight years with the same employer and this would grow at 10% a year until the 100% pension right was reached after 15 years.

Vesting is not now guaranteed and varies greatly in labor contracts.

The cost of the vesting requirement to employers was estimated by the committee to be a maximum of 1.2% of a firm's annual payroll.

An employer also would be required to pay 0.2% of the unfunded liability to a pension plan into a federally administered insurance fund that would pay off pensions if firms went bankrupt.

In addition, the bill would also permit an employer to carry his ac-culated pension rights from one employer to another.

The portability feature would transfer accumulated pension rights to a federal fund and the employee could leave the rights in the fund until he retires or have them transferred to a new pension plan with a subsequent employer.

Other provisions of the measure would set standards for investment of pension funds and require trustees of pension programs to report to the secretary of labor any sale or transfer of pension fund investments.

Philadelphian Given 4 Years For Extortion

Omaha (UPI) — Edmund S. Paciewicz, 53, of Philadelphia, Thursday was sentenced to four years in prison in federal court here in an extortion scheme.

Paciewicz pleaded guilty to the charge.

Greever earlier was fined $1,500 and placed on five years probation.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's. X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
